Current Events

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1924, by Star Company)

A FEW days ago everything looked wonderfully smooth for the Administration.

Hiram Johnson MIGHT be able to stir up something, but "wise men" said it didn't seem probable.

McAdoo might make a strong Democratic run, but it probably wouldn't make much difference.

Now comes the Teapot Dome scandal, with the oil reserves of the Navy sold to a private concern, and a very unpleasant discussion as to what happened to a certain lump sum of $100,000.

UNLESS that is thoroughly cleaned up immediately, and by the Republicans themselves, not waiting for Democrats to do it, it may make a big difference in the election of 1924. However, it is not likely that Mr. Coolidge will wait for Democrats to do his house cleaning.

YESTERDAY'S testimony concerning the Teapot Dome, especially young Mr. Roosevelt's account of his resigning from the oil company, will interest you and the voters. You will probably hear from President Coolidge and the Attorney-General within forty-eight hours.

That is not the sort of scandal that can be allowed to simmer too long.

MYRA COLE, seventeen years old, went to the mill at 6:30 in the morning, in the little Rhode Island village of Hill's Grove, and got away at 5 in the afternoon. She thought she would try New York.

She went without eating for several days, fell in a faint on the street, and has been sent back to Hill's Grove.

She will start in at the mill again at 6:30 in the morning, and get out at 5 in the afternoon. But things used to be worse.

THIS telegram is received from Reno, Nevada:

"Two Chinese will be executed by lethal gas, Carson City, Nevada, February 8. Fearful that horrors may attend this untried experimental means of execution, as an admirer and reader of your articles, largely read daily in this community, would appreciate anything you could editorially say. Reverend Otis L. Linn, superintendent Presbyterian Church of Nevada."

THE Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals kills superfluous cats and dogs in a lethal chamber. The animals don't know that it is going to happen; their death is merciful. What can you say about civilized human beings, forcing two Chinese into an air tight "lethal chamber," turning on deadly gas and killing them? The Constitution of the United States forbids cruel and unusual punishment. That method of killing is, at least, unusual. A good lawyer ought to be able to postpone that execution.

WILL the men be tied down or strapped in chairs in the lethal cell? Will they be killed two at a time or separately?

Will they be left free to dash their heads in despair against the walls of the death trap?

Will a Chinese interpreter explain to them what is going to happen? Will a clergyman mumble prayers through the walls of

MISTRIAL IS DECLARED BY COURT

Judge Orders It Taken From Jury After Levenson's Testimony About "Fixing"

The trial of William J. Corcoran on charges of conspiracy to extort in the famous blackmail cases was suddenly halted today and a mistrial declared by Judge John B. McLaughlin in Superior Court.

"I do so reluctantly," said Judge McLaughlin, "on the grounds that I do not think the jury, owing to Harry E. Levenson's testimony yesterday concerning alleged corruption of jurors, could be humanly qualified to pass fully and impartially on the case."

Judge McLaughlin's statement to the jurors said:

"An unusual and extraordinary situation has arisen in this case. I will describe it as disclosed to me. When this jury was impaneled I felt the case would be decided fairly by twelve just, intelligent and impartial men.

"Nothing has occurred up to this point to change my belief. I believe there rests in the minds of no one the slightest suspicion concerning the integrity and honesty of any man seated upon this panel.

DECIDE ON TRUTH

"One of the two original defendants pleaded guilty and was called as a witness by the State. He has testified in substance among other things that a co-defendant, who is now the defendant at the bar, informed him that some members of the panel had been corrupted, and he testified in such a manner as to leave the impression that some of your members had been corrupted.

"Now, as I view this aspect of the case it will be necessary for you to

STEAM TRAWLER TIDE CAMOUFLAGED AS AN ICEBERG

BALDWIN CABINET OUT; LABOR WINS

London, Jan. 22.—Premier Stanley Baldwin, chief of the Tory's government of Great Britain for nearly eight months, resigned today, after the House of Commons had adopted a resolution last night expressing lack of confidence in his cabinet. The Labor party was summoned into power for the first time in English history.

After Baldwin had visited Buckingham Palace, where he tendered the resignation of his government J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party and chief of the opposition in the House of Commons, was invited to the palace to receive the designation of Premier.

MacDonald readily accepted the post, knowing in advance that the honor would be his.

After Baldwin had announced his resignation, Commons adjourned until February 12.

The first change contemplated by MacDonald, it is reported, will be to merge the Foreign Office with the Premiership.

'Doctor' Moroney Finds American Investigators Are Ill Without Examination

The Boston American introduces to its readers as Vulture No. 1 in its investigation of Boston doctors a fat gentleman working in the heart of Boston, who calls himself "Dr. Moroney."

So far as the American is concerned, Moroney may be entitled to call himself "Dr." The American waives the point. All this newspaper is interested in is revealing "Dr. Moroney" as he is, a greedy, rapacious person conducting a quack's medical practice; a person who has proven himself a liar and cheat.

Dr. Moroney told two of the Boston American's investigators they were diseased.

The health of both investigators had been established as excellent by specialists in the City Hospital, where they were examined before calling on Moroney.

"Dr. Moroney" arrived at his conclusions with an ease that would amaze bonafide physicians. Examinations were hardly superficial.

DISCOUNT FOR CASH

There were no blood tests. The doctor's charges for "cures" were the same.

More strangely, the so-called "cures" were the same, electrical treatments and a batch of pills and colored liquids.

To cure the first investigator Dr. Moroney asked $50, with a charge of $7.50 per week extra for medicines.

He would knock off $5 for cash.

He asked the same fee of investigator No. 2.

At both young men Moroney became riled when they did not hand over money to suit him. In fact, at no time did he show as much interest in the supposed patients' conditions as he did in their finances.

Dr. Moroney carries on his prac-

EX-COAST GUARDS HELD N ROBBERY

Reginald P. Peele and Arthur Roberts, two former coast guardsmen attached to the Pooint Allerton Coast Guard Station, were each held in $2,000 bonds for the Grand Jury, when arraigned before Judge Kelley in Hingham Court today on a charge of murderous assault and robbery on William Cleverley, another guardsman. They pleaded not guilty.

Medical Examiner Magrath, testifying for the government, said he had examined a coat alleged to be owned by Roberts, and found it stained with blood.

Children Light Fire to Warm Stray Dog; Home Is Burned

Springfield, Jan. 22.—Georgie Shumsky's four years old. His sister, Rosie, is two. They found a stray puppy shivering in East Hooker street near their home, No. 40, and put it in their cellar. All night they dreamed of the dog and today they found the little fellow still shivering.

So they built a fire, and the flames ignited the house.

Georgie seized the pup, and, followed by Rosie, ran to a neighbor's house. Firemen rescued Georgie's Ma, her five children and Mrs. Burk Conoyer, who lives upstairs, and her five children. The house was destroyed.

End Comes Peacefully, With Wife at Bedside; Was Reported Improving

Moscow, Jan. 22 (I.N.S.) Nicolai Lenine, founder of the Russian Soviet government, expounder of Communism and the most spectacular figure in European statecraft since Napoleon Bonaparte, is dead at the age of fifty-three. He had been ill for two years of heart trouble and partial paralysis.

An official communique said:

"Lenine died at Gorky, thirty miles from Moscow, at 6:30 o'clock Monday evening. His wife and sister were at the bedside."

The first public announcement of Lenine's death was made amidst dramatic scenes of grief by President Kalenin of the Russian Federated Republic of Soviets at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Bolshy Theatre,

THRILLING RESCUES AT FOUR BLAZES

Many Made Homeless as Firemen Battle Flames in the Back Bay and Roxbury

Half a hundred persons, many of them women and children, clad only in thin sleeping garments, were driven into the icy, wind-swept streets today by three fires which destroyed one tenement house and damaged two apartment houses.

More than a score of persons were carried from the burning structures by police.

At the same time firemen battled for more than an hour to save the Congregational Church, Roxbury, after fire broke out in the basement of the structure.

The monetary loss sustained in the three fires was $40,000, but infinitely worse was the suffering of the women and children, carried into a zero temperature and exposed, unprotected, to the elements until neighbors could take them in.

At the apartment at No. 371 Commonwealth avenue, occupants of the building were aroused by three former football stars of Harvard. So hastily did they flee the burning structure that one woman left $25,000 in jewels behind, these being rescued later by a protective company.

QUICK WORK SAVES MANY.

At No. 488 Western avenue, Brighton, the quick work of four policemen, headed by Patrolman Lorachell, saved a score of persons from death by suffocation in a four-decide whether Levenson told you the truth when he said that Corcoran said that some members of the panel had been corrupted, or whether what he said was a lie.

JUDGE HALTS THE CORCORAN CASE, DECLARES IT A MISTRIAL

"It will be necessary for you to decide as a subsidiary issue whether he was telling the truth or a lie when he said that.

"If you found he was telling the truth when he said Corcoran said that some of your party had been corrupted, the court feels that it will be humanly impossible for you to render your verdict in favor of Corcoran fairly and impartially on the issue in this case as to whether Corcoran conspired to blackmail such persons.

"Having accused you as a body of having been corrupted, you could not fairly and impartially consider the main issue as to whether Corcoran is guilty or innocent.

CAUSE RESENTMENT

"If on the other hand you found that Levenson had testified falsely concerning charges which he made in your very faces it would cause resentment on the part of the government which would preclude you from honestly and fairly dealing with the government's case.

"As your impartiality was attacked by the witness, or at least in view of the fact that his testimony tended to show it would be impossible for you to act without bias, it is the duty of the court to see that both parties are impartially tried.

"The court feels it is impossible under these circumstances fairly and without bias to try the case as to whether Corcoran is guilty of the crime alleged.

"Under these circumstances I withdraw the case from the jury reluctantly, and without suspecting any of its members.

"I would also say that testimony in the case reflects on one of the counsel, suggesting that he took some steps to influence the jury. I can only say, regardless of the question of the veracity of the witness, in justification to the counsel, that his character and reputation have been of the highest during his many years at the bar. Those who know him would believe it impossible for him to do any such thing."

The retrial, the court announced, will begin next week, probably on Thursday.

LAUDS JURY

"I have the highest opinion of your character, integrity and impartiality as I had at the beginning, but I am charged as judge with the duty of seeing that both of the parties here have at least an impartial trial."

Corcoran had been on trial this time about ten days.

With him for a week sat Levenson, co-defendant. Then, following testimony of Harry A. Boswell, American reporter, Levenson changed his plea of not guilty to guilty.

He became a State witness late Tuesday.

SECOND TRIAL

This is the second of the so-called blackmail trials to be halted.

The first was in December, when presiding Judge Quinn met an accident which necessitated his going under the care of a physician.

Illness followed of such a protracted nature it was deemed advisable to start a new trial.

At the first trial eight defendants, including Corcoran and Levenson, were on trial. At the second trial the number of defendants was reduced to two, Levenson and Corcoran, and the number of indictments reduced.

in the past twenty-four hours was Greenville, Me., where 18 below zero was reached. In Boston the mercudy started climbing at daybreak. At noon it had reached 18 above zero.

The preceding twenty-four hours, however, witnessed terrible suffering. Nine persons were killed as a result of the cold and many injured.

F. J. McDonald of Weymouth was severely burned when he attempted to put out a fire in his automobile opposite 193 Freeport street, Dorchester.

Frances Klimowel, five years old, No. 180 Eighth street, South Boston, was burned in a fire at her home. She is in a serious condition at Carney hospital.

Mary Brennan, eighteen years old, of No. 20 Walcott street, Everett, was burned when her clothing caught fire from a gas stove explosion in her home.

Twenty alarms of fire were sounded in Boston and damage estimated at $40,000 was done.

FERRYBOATS CRASH.

The wind caused a collision between the East Boston ferry boats Brewster and Newtone. Each was slightly damaged. There was great suffering at sea by mariners and passengers.

Gale-Driven Ships Arrive Ice-Coated

Looking more like an iceberg than a steamship the steam collier Penobscot crept into port today out of a 90-mile-an-hour northwest gale and docked at the Edison wharf in South Boston.

At the Fish Pier the steam trawler Tide and the schooner Aretha Spinney tied up after a struggle with the icy gale that left them both heavily coated with ice and listing under the tons of spray that froze to the decks and rigging as they plowed through rough seas kicked up by the gale.

Several of the crews of all the vessels were frostbitten, although watches were frequently changed so that men would not have to remain long on the decks, exposed to the freezing blasts and spray that dashed over them.

Captain Miller, of the Penobscot, said his vessel was seventeen hours covering the sixty miles between Orleans and her South Boston dock. At times the wind blew at a ninety-mile velocity and the Penobscot, being heavily laden and low in the water, was buried time after time by big seas.

The water froze where it struck and the hatches had to be chopped clear before the cargo could be moved.

The wind being off shore prevented the sea rising to the great heights that come from an easterly blow. Vessels far at sea, however, probably experienced more difficulty and agents are anxiously scanning radio reports from these ships.

A number of tugs, barges and coal-laden schooners are stormbound at Vineyard Haven and Buzzards Bay.

labor strife, the railway locomotive engineers and firemen and some of the coal miners being on strike.

MacDonald's followers said he would set his face at once toward settling these disputes.

Many of the Liberals voted for the Laborite resolution of "No confidence," the result being 328 in favor of it and 256 in opposition.

The final meeting of the old Cabinet was held this morning just before Baldwin visited the palace to hand in the resignation of himself and his colleagues.

The House of Commons met this afternoon with Premier Designate MacDonald in power. However, he had not completed the formation of his new Labor government, so it was anticipated that adjournment would be taken for a few weeks to enable the Laborites to formulate not only their government but their policies upon home and foreign questions.

Great Britain realizes that the whole world is watching the experiment being made here. While the dominant party is officially dominated by Laborites, many of the newspapers call them Socialists.

MacDonald and his Laborite colleagues united in assuring the press that nothing radical would be attempted.

"The country can trust us," declared the Premier Designate. "There is nothing to fear. We realize our responsibilities."

It was anticipated that Commons would not meet again until about February 4.

DINES SHIELDS CHAUFFEUR WHO SHOT HIM

In Court Session Held at Hospital He Is Very Hazy on Details of Attack

Los Angeles, Jan. 22.—An extraordinary court session occurred at Good Samaritan Hospital when Courtland S. Dines testified from his bed how he was shot down on New Year's Day by Horace Greer, Mabel Normand's chauffeur.

Indication that Greer would be freed on his plea of self-defense came when Dines testified:

"I was greatly offended at Joe's (Greer's) attitude toward Miss Normand. Maybe I tried to hit Joe, maybe I did not. Whether I threatened him, I can't say. Joe wanted Mabel to go home. I don't remember just what he said, but something in the way he said it made me mad. Then the shot was fired. I remember nothing else."

BUT WHERE WAS EDNA?

The brief testimony of Dines failed to clear up the question:

"Where was Edna Purviance when the fire-crackers cracked?"

It was on that question that Miss Normand, who had repeated on the stand that the shots sounded like fire-crackers, disagreed with the testimony given by Miss Purviance.

Twisting her feet about the legs of her chair like a schoolgirl, Miss Normand appeared stage struck as her testimony was begun. Quaking and shaking, visibly frightened and nervous, Miss Normand told the crowded courtroom that Miss Purviance, whom she said she had known for years, was in the bedroom of Dines' home when the shooting occurred. Miss Purviance had testified she was certain she was in the bathroom.

"ALL MIXED UP."

Given a piece of chalk and asked to draw a diagram showing where every one in the house was at the time of the shooting, Miss Normand, nearly dropping the crayon, surrendered entirely to her nerves. Regaining a hold of the chalk, she started toward the blackboard, faltered and then exclaimed:

"I can't; I can't draw. I can tell you—I'm all mixed up."

"The blood was all over his shirt. Edna and I helped him into the bedroom. He said: 'I've been plugged.' We put him on the bed. Then the officers came later," Mabel testified, acting out each statement. The crowd was on edge, all eyes fastened on her.

COSTS $30 WHEN AUTO BREAKS POLE

Lancing, Mich., Jan. 22.—Every time an automobile driver smashes into a telephone pole it costs the telephone company $30. The loss of poles from this cause alone in the Lansing district, L. J. Burry, plant superintendent of the Bell Company, says, is $120 a week, or more than $6,000 annually. This, he said, is a dead loss to the company, because the pole-smashing motorist never thinks of the damage to the pole, being occupied generally with the damage to the machine.

SIX TROLLEY CARS BURNED IN BARN

Bellows Falls, Vt., Jan. 22.—Fire destroyed the car barns and contents of the Bellows Falls-Saxton's River Street Railway, located about a mile from the business part of this town. The contents included six trolley cars and a snow plow, the main generator and two dynamos, as well as all the machinery and stock for repairs of cars.

EX-FLOOR LEADER IN HOUSE REJECTED

Fall River, Jan. 22.—Representative Edward F. Harrington, Democratic floor leader of the House for several years, failed to be confirmed by the Board of Aldermen as a member of the Board of Assessors for a term of three years.

Lord Haldane and Snowden to Be in New Cabinet

London, Jan. 22.—J. Ramsay MacDonald who will be Britain's new premier, probably will present his new Cabinet to King George tomorrow.

FLAMES MENACE 2 RHODE SLAND TOWNS

Providence, Jan. 22.—Business centres of Greenville and Conimicut were badly damaged by fire today. Help from Providence and Johnston was sent to the Greenville fire. Two buildings, housing the postoffice, a grocery store, blacksmith shops, garage and several tenements were destroyed in this blaze.

At Conimicut four buildings were burned to the ground. The loss at the Greenville fire was $25,000. The damage at Conimicut is not known.

FORD ANNOUNCES PHILADELPHIA PLANT

Detroit, Jan. 22.—The Ford Motor Company today announced the proposed construction in Philadelphia of a model factory for the assembling of 150,000 cars and trucks annually for absorption in the Philadelphia district alone. The plant will employ more than 2,000 workers and will have an annual payroll of approximately $5,000,000.

RUM PROBE IS DEMANDED IN BEVERLY

Mayor Wants District Attorney to Sift Rumor He Is in League With Bootleggers

Rumors that Chief John H. Hayes and Mayor Whittemore of Beverly are in league with bootleggers and hi-jackers will be placed before the district attorney of Essex County, following a vote of the Beverly Board of Aldermen.

The meeting of the board developed into a verbal duel between Mayor Whittemore and President Edward Thompson of the Board of Aldermen.

The board failed to confirm the Mayor's appointment of Chief Hayes as keeper of the lockup.

The Mayor demanded that the board take the matter of rumors relative to the police department to the district attorney of Essex county for a thorough investigation.

With his hand on a Bible the mayor charged that a "certain alderman came to me with the suggestion that I appoint certain members of the board on certain committees so that those appointments could be financial benefit to me."

"This Alderman told me," continued the Mayor with indignation, "that he had received money at the time a fire engine was bought for the central fire station, and also on the occasion of the buying of hose and curbing for the city."

At this point the Mayor and Alderman Thompson exchanged bitter words. Neither hesitated to voice his opinion of the other.

"I'LL KILL YOU, ONE BY ONE," BOBBED BANDIT WARNS POLICE

GIRL TERROR PLANS NEW HOLDUP

Plays Hide and Seek With the Brooklyn Detectives, Aided by Youth

New York, Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—A certain young woman, known as the "bobbed hair bandit of Brooklyn," is having the time of her life playing hide and seek with the Metropolitan Police force.

After several weeks of robbing stores in the most audacious manner, reminiscent of frontier days in the wild west, she is still outwitting the law.

Following each daring hold-up, she runs back to her lair, counts up the proceeds, divides with her confederates, and plans the next day's work, and all the time she has a little laugh all her own.

"MISS JESSE JAMES"

Miss Jesse James, terror of grocers and druggists, is running rampant. What's more, she makes all sorts of fun of the force, leaving behind her such insolent notes as would rile any self-respecting policeman.

All that is known of the bobbed bandit, gleaned from her many victims, is that her hair is short and black. Her vocabulary composed of more slang than you ever heard, and her nerve simply immense.

The department laid a net for her, not the first net either. It was just a bit weary of her deeds and her taunts. She slipped through again, robbed another store, left another note, and got away another time.

LAUGHS AT POLICE.

Here's what this most recent note said:

"Well, I'm certainly having a fine time with you bulls. Give it up, boys, because you'll never get me, for I'll kill you off one by one if you start after me. Be careful now, that's my advice to you. We're using the money we got to good advantage, so now you fellows be decent and don't try to make us spend it on a lawyer. So long, boys, but don't forget that you'll hear from me during the week."

Meanwhile, two other girls have been arrested on suspicion. One, Helen Quigley, said she was an exactress and a good housekeeper, but no robber. Two grocery clerks identified her. The other, Martha Gereschinski, was dismissed from court. The escapades of the bobbed-hair terrorist last night weakened the cases against these two.

FLOURISHES GUN.

It is the habit of the bobbed bandit of Brooklyn to do the gun-flourishing herself. She "sticks 'em up" to the accompaniment of her best slang.

Then she keeps the victims in a corner, while her confederate, described as a tall, good-looking youth, empties the cash drawer. They back out and fly away in an automobile, the girl at the wheel, it is thought.

Brooklyn storekeepers are taking extra precautions against unwelcome visits, but one or two have confessed that they would like to see this romantic, adventurous and mysterious girl.

A dozen persons, most of them aged and infirm and including a man and wife, both crippled, were taken by police from the tenement house at Nos. 10, 11 and 12 Parnell street, Roxbury, when fire swept the flimsy two and a half-story structure this morning.

BREAK DOWN DOORS.

The fire in the apartment house at No. 488 Western avenue, Brighton, broke out on the second floor of the structure. Members of the five families were asleep. Police ran through the halls and endeavored to arouse the tenants, but only two men were awakened.

The officers broke down the doors and rescued a dozen women and children. The victims were carried into the street and turned over to neighbors. The rescued, particularly the children, suffered terribly from the cold.

At the six-story apartment at No. 371 Commonwealth avenue, near Massachusetts avenue, Mrs. A. E. Sargent, who occupies an apartment on the fifth floor, heard flames crackling in the hallway. She opened a window and called to three men who were passing on the opposite side of the street. The men, W. L. Murray, captain the 1919 Harvard football team; "Swede" Nelson and Charles Hall, both former Crimson football stars, and Gerland Harrison of Winthrop turned in an alarm and then aroused occupants on the lower floors of the apartment.

Mrs. Sargeant, her daughters, Emily, Margaret and Adelaide, together with two maids, ran to the street, Mrs. Sargeant forgetting her jewels, valued at $25,000. Not until the women were wrapped in blankets in the Harvard Club did she think of the gems. Protective Company No. 2 secured them.

GREAT ICE PALACE

All floors of the building were water soaked, while the water on the outside froze almost as it struck the building, converting the structure into a great ice palace.

The Parnell avenue fire in Roxbury completely destroyed the tenement house owned by Mrs. Belle Peters, who occupied two rooms in the building. The fire broke out on a rear porch and swept through the structure.

Two alarms brought out practically the entire Roxbury fire department. Patrolman John O'Malley of the Roxbury station ran through the burning structure and led and carried the aged residents of the building through smoke-filled corridors, to safety.

MANY HOMELESS.

Most of the tenants are in poor financial circumstances and were left without a home. Patrick Dougherty, sixty-five, and his wife, Margaret, both crippled, were carried into the street by the officer. Later, neighbors assisted them to a vacant unheated house across the street, thrown open as a refuge.

One aged man stood on the street, thinly clad and called for someone to throw down his clothing. A fireman tossed a burning sweater and coat into the street. Inside the garments was wrapped a pan of cooked meat. The old man stamped out the fire in the garments, put them on and gratefully declared that the Lord had provided his dinner, at any rate.

So flimsy was the structure that the hose streams tore away great sections of the roof. The building was completely destroyed.

FIRE IN CHURCH.

At the Highland Congregational Church in Roxbury the furnace fired the cellar of the structure and the flames quickly spread to the church vestry. The church is a wooden structure and a second alarm summoned the entire Roxbury fire department. The intense cold and a high wind handicapped the firemen, but they managed to extinguish the flames after damage of $5,000 had been done.

Wife Is Beaten for Kissing While Single

Stamford, Ky., Jan. 22 (Universal).—Melvin Wright, the pedagogue of Pleasant Point carried two adages with him to school to wit: "The Lord chasteneth whom He loveth" and "Spare the rod and spoil the child." He also took his child-wife of sixteen along in order that she might swell the attendance and widen her itellectual horizon at the same time.

Wright is now in jail on charges of assault preferred by his wife.

According to her statement, Wright beat her with a strap once for violating a school rule. He beat her again when she refused to write on the blackboard: "I have never kissed any other man but my husband," because, she said, it wasn't true. Then he beat her a third time when he got her home.

She might have excused the first two on the ground of schoolroom discipline. But the last one was just a plain old beating without academic flourish or pedagogic justification.

Wright was held in $5,000 bail by the Grand Jury and being unable to raise the money was sent to jail.

LEBAUDY'S WIDOW LOSES SALARY SUIT

Paris, Jan. 22.—Mme. Henri Sudreau, who was exonerated by an American jury after shooting her former husband, Jacques Lebaudy, has been ordered by the courts to pay $9,950 to Paul Benoit, who was her secretary in the United States and who had the title of "Chamberlain," as in a royal household. Benoit produced a written promise from the widow to pay him.

RESCUED FROM BRIGHTON FIRE.

The lower row are four young brothers: Leo, Mitchell, Edward and Felix Poplawski, who were saved in a fierce blaze at No. 488 Western avenue, Brighton. Five families lived in the house and policemen had to break down doors to rescue the sleepers. Above are Patrolman H. E. Nickerson, hero of the fire at No. 371 Commonwealth avenue, and Mrs. J. G. Walker, one of the tenants in the apartment building who was driven out by the fire.

BRITISH RAIL HEADS REFUSE TO ARBITRATE

Decline to Invite Strikers to Resume Conference Broken Off Last Sunday

London, Jan. 22.—Attempted negotiations for settling the national railway strike of locomotive engineers and firemen swung into a deadlock this afternoon.

The railway managers refused to invite the strikers to resume the conferences broken off Sunday just before the strike went into effect.

London, Jan. 22 (I.N.S.).—The strike situation took a turn for the better today. Officials of the National Union of Railwaymen continued to seek a settlement because the strike had been called by a rival organization and the leaders of the strikers sent a letter to the railway companies offering to enter into a conference for an adjustment of the wage dispute.

It was claimed that the strikers are weakening in some districts and that some of the engineers returned to work.

TRACKED MUD OVER WFE'S CLEAN FLOOR

Alice F. Sullivan of Roxbury was granted a divorce from Thomas J. Sullivan by Judge Dolan in Suffolk Probate Court today, and given custody of her eight-year-old daughter Margaret. "My husband took particular pleasure in walking over my clean floors with his big, muddy boots," Mrs. Sullivan testified. "We last lived together four years ago at No. 9 Temple street, Somerville, and he once, forced me into a corner, and threatened me with a revolver. He struck me in the face and kicked me." She said he was intoxicated "on an average of three or four times every week" and lost a profitable jewelry business on that account.

COLLEGE HEAD RESIGNS UNDER MORALS FIRE

Girls' Charges Not Included in Report of Laird Trial Board

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 22 (Universal).—Dr. John W. Laird, president of Albion College resigned. His resignation was accepted by the board of trustees.

An investigation board found the professor guilty of "lack of administrative ability." No charges reflecting upon the president's moral character were included in the report.

Troubles at Albion College started when Dr. Laird expelled Miss Vera Tomlinson. Dr. Laird charged that she was expelled because of smoking and drinking while on a party with members of the college, while Miss Tomlinson charges that she was expelled because she spurned Dr. Laird's advances.

Dr. Laird was also charged with a flirtation, came to Albion from Baltimore, Md., and it was while with Mrs. Albert F. Wall, on a train, which was revealed by an intercepted note. Mrs. Wall referred to the "Johnny Boy" note and a subsequent luncheon with Dr. Laird as a "tiny joke."

Dr. Laird was also charged with trying to make love to his secretary, Miss Mildred Mapley. This Miss Mapley denies.

S. S. Kresge, ten-cent store king, who was recently divorced, is a member of the college board. He defended Dr. Laird.

Another development was that Kresge's financial aid to Albion College hinged upon Dr. Laird remaining as president. Faculty members admitted today that reports had been circulated at Albion that should Dr. Laird leave the Kresge checks for $175,000 would be cancelled.

Professor F. S. Goodrich, head of the Bible study department, has been named acting president.

SEEK LOVE AFFAIR OF SLAIN MAN

Authorities Have Only Slender Clews in Murder of Deputy Sheriff Leonard

Rutland, Vt., Jan. 22.—Did Deputy Sheriff Allen E. Leonard, murdered in his home at Wallingford last Saturday, have a weakness for women that brought about his death?

Was the wife of the slain man, Mrs. Carrie Leonard, now held in the Rutland Hospital charged with the killing of her mate, the same woman who caused Leonard's first wife to divorce him, twenty-eight years ago?

Did succeeding love affairs bring about a domestic situation that culminated in the Leonard dining room, when the officer was shot down by a weapon said to belong to his wife?

These are among the slender clues on which the authorities are working in an effort to fasten the crime on Mrs. Leonard.

PRISONER IN HOSPITAL

In the meantime, Mrs. Leonard, without counsel and without relatives, save a brother, is being held a prisoner in the Rutland Hospital. State's Attorney Charles E. Novak has issued orders that no one is to see the woman. She will be held a prisoner until her case comes to trial, probably not before March.

The first wife of the slain officer, who divorced him twenty-eight years ago for "an affair with another woman," was located today. She is now the wife of Paul Taylor, to whom she was married two years after divorcing Leonard at Granby, Vt.

Mrs. Taylor declared that Leonard, when he was her husband, never beat and abused her.

"He always treated me right, but there was an affair with another woman and I learned all about it and secured a divorce. I do not know whether the other woman was the present Mrs. Leonard or not."

BROTHER INDIGNANT

Leonard did not marry the second time until four years after his first wife divorced him.

Frank Smith, an elderly farmer of Pawlet, Vt., arrived in Rutland today. He is Mrs. Leonard's brother and he expressed indignation and amazement at the treatment his sister has received at the hands of the State's attorney and the Attorney-General of Vermont.

Smith was bitter when he talked of State's Attorney Novak questioning his sister in the hospital without her having counsel or advice of any kind and declared that he would secure a lawyer at once and stick with his sister to the end.

Meanwhile, State's Attorney Novak will say nothing about the case. He denies he put Mrs. Leonard through the "third degree" at the Rutland Hospital, a few hours after she recovered from the coma in which she had been since the slaying of her husband. He admitted questioning her, but said that nothing would be divulged until the case comes to trial.

At the hospital it was said that Mrs. Leonard would be confined to the institution for several weeks, at least. She is being guarded by men from the sheriff's office.

London, Jan. 22—Isabel MacDonald, twenty-year-old daughter of the new Premier, who since her father is a widower will manage his official residence at No. 10 Downing street and will mother her two little sisters there, this forenoon visited the old building set aside for the prime minister. She was shown through the rambling structure, comprising a labyrinth of hallways, offices and living apartments.

"I found it rather complicated," she said afterward, "but I think I shall like it."

GRILLS HERRICK ON HIS FEES IN WILLETT CASE

Whipple Brings Out Further Charges for Defendant's Legal Services

At the trial of the Willett-Sears conspiracy suit for 15,00,000 against Robert F. Herrick and a group of Boston bankers today, Attorney Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for George F. Willett pointed a finger at Robert F. Herrick, who has been in the witness chair since last Wednesday, and asked:

"Did you hear of anybody making a direct effort with regard to raising money to save Willett-Sears property as indicated in the correspondence in this case by putting stock in the hands of trustees for the benefit of Willett-Sears creditors first, Willett-Sears to get only what was left after the creditors had been paid in full?"

Attorney Mayberry's objection was overruled and Herrick said, "I couldn't answer yes or no. I'd have to answer in pieces, having the question in pieces."

"Very well, I won't press it," replied Whipple. "If you don't wish to answer it in justice to yourself I'll drop it.

Whipple continued his searching examination of Herrick on entries on a ledger sheet of Herick's law firm with relation to legal charges for srevices with relation to the Willett-Sears Company matter. These services were preliminary to the proposal to make a loan of $3,000,000 to the Willett-Sears Company.

The total on the ledger sheet showed charges of $8,500 were made, most to the credit of Herrick himself. An entry showed that at Herrick's direction $2,500 of the total was charged to the First National Bank and Old Colony Trust Company, $1,250 to each, and that $6,000 of the total was transferred to be charged to the American Felt Company.

HUSBAND'S LOVE VALUED ABOVE $1

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 20.—A husband's love is worth more than a dollar, the Kansas State Supreme Court believes. Mrs. Lutie Bracken, who recently was awarded $1 when she asked for $50,000 from Grace E. Champlin on charges of alienating her husband's affections, appealed from the decision of the Phillips County Court.

The Supreme Court held that the decision of the lower court established the guilt of the defendant and the damages were not sufficient. The case was reversed.

ACCUSES HUSBAND OF MANY BEATINGS

In the five years of their married life it was just one fight after another according to Mrs. Bertha Sproul of Somerville, suing Albert C. Sproul, at East Cambridge Court for divorce, alleging cruel and abusive treatment and non support. She left him, but fourteen months later returned when Sproul promised to mend his ways, she said. But he continued to beat her, she declared. They have three children.

1 DEAD IN $500,000 BLAZE

Business Section of Lyndonville, Vt., Swept by Fire; 25 Families Homeless

Lyndonville, Vt., Jan. 22.—This town today faced the task of rebuilding its trading centre after a blaze which took one life, made twenty-five families homeless, caused injuries to regular and volunteer fire-fighters, destroyed all the buildings but three in the business section of Main street, and caused a property loss estimated at $500,000.

The cause of the fire worst in the history of Lyndonville or any of its subdivisions, is a mystery. It came on the coldest night of the Winter, the thermometer registering 10 above zero and while a hard wind was blowing.

Mrs. Herbert Stone, the single victim of the blaze, lost her life by leaping from the upper story of one of the doomed buildings.

Communication with the outside world by telephone was cut off with the destruction of the local exchange. Mrs. Mabel Duffy, in charge of the exchange at night, was the heroine of the fire. It was Mrs. Duffy who summoned aid from St. Johnsbury, nine miles to the south.

While the population of Lyndonville is but 2,000, that of Lyndon, of which this district is a part, is 4,500 and for a time every telephone was busy. Mrs. Duffy called in the day operators and all remained at their posts until town officials ordered them to leave. Ten minutes later nothing remained of the office. A switchboard is on the way from Boston.

Among the buildings totally destroyed were the Masonic, Stearns, Eaton, Ide and Lincoln & Squires blocks and the Hotel Lyndon. Two of these structures were of brick. The fire started on the south side of the street, raged up and down the length of the business section and was not brought under control until 2:30 a. m.

CHARGES FORGERY ON THREE $100 CHECKS

Charged with forging the name of Ferl Felix Weiss, former Department of Justice agent, to three checks for $100 each, James J. Bosden of Newton, who conducts a new agency called the International News Bureau of Boston, went on trial before Judge Raymond in Superior Criminal Court today.

The case grew out of Weiss preparing manuscript covering his service with the Department of Justice durin gthe war. He alleges Bosden sold the manuscript to a New York newspaper, receiving three checks for $100 each, made payable to Weiss and that Bosden forged the Weiss endorsements. Bosden says the checks should have been payable to his agency and that he endorsed them to save complications.

JUDGE HOPES TO JAIL WOMEN "BOOTLEGS"

Lowell, Jan. 22.—Women bootleggers have become so prevalent here that Judge Thomas J. Enright, in disposing of a case in District Court, said: "The women are getting to be nearly as bad as the men. The only way to stop this is to impose direct sentences on first offenders. The judges are to have a meeting next Thursday, when this matter will be brought up. I hope the conferring of direct sentences on all first offenders against the liquor laws will go through. There are altogether too many 'lady' bootleggers."

Gerard, former ambassador to Germany.

DR. MORONEY FAKES DIAGNOSIS OF DISEASE

fice at No. 220 Tremont street, opposite the Majestic Theatre. Down an alley so close a person could toss a pebble on its roof is a police precinct station.

On a door at the end of the hall is painted these words: "Dr. Moroney. Private."

Dr. Moroney is a gray haired man as smooth of face as are his practices. He is of medium height, with fat hands. He affects a gray professional man's business suit and is modest in neckwear and linen.

He has a paunch which is prominent only when he squats in his cheap oak swivel chair at his cheap oak desk, thumbing a paper back ledger in which he records his patients.

To each he gives a number. When one American investigator purposely forgot his number, Dr. Moroney was decidedly "put out." The "patient's" loss of memory made it necessary for the "doctor" to thumb through the ledger, an effort too laborious for one who makes his money as easily as does Dr. Moroney. His thin lips tightened into a line and his eyes narrowed to slits.

It is strange that Dr. Moroney should be so ill natured for he possesses a delightful sense of humor.

In the last six months he has scattered about Greater Boston by the thousands a little diary sort of booklet with a red checker board pattern cover addressed to the multitudes and probably at this moment resting in the vest pockets of thousands of ignorant persons who some day may believe themselves in need of Dr. Moroney.

AD IS JOKE

In this book, which he should have nicknamed his "joke book" one reads:

> WHEN YOU ARE SICK
> The first thing you want to know is:
> "Where to Find a Good Doctor"
> If you will direct your steps to the offices of Dr. Moroney, 220 Tremont St., Boston, Mass. you will find the RELIABLE SPECIALIST you are looking for without waste of time.
> When you visit Dr. Moroney you will find that he is very careful about getting a correct diagnosis of your sickness; that is, finding out where and how you are sick. His offices are equipped with scientific apparatus, so that if you require a BLOOD TEST, a CHEMICAL ANALYSIS of the URINE, an X-RAY EXAMINATION, or whatever you may need, he is prepared to serve you. With the help of these tests, laboratory reports and his knowledge of diseases, he avoids the danger of making mistakes.
> The DOCTOR will then tell you what his charges are for treatment. No one need stay away on account of money matters. Anyone may obtain the Doctor's help and pay by the week or month, as he can afford it. The Doctor's fees are so low, because of his large practice, that no sick person need hesitate to go to him.

On the afternoon of December 4 about 2:30 o'clock an investigator, who will be referred to as Jones, stepped into the reception room of Moroney's Tremont street office, an office he sometimes refers to as an institute.

The reception room comprised the sort of a web a spider like Moroney would spin for ignorant flies.

It was filled with Mission-style furniture.

PROBER CALLS

On a table in the centre of the room lay a batch of old magazines. There was a cheap rug on the floor and scattered about were half a dozen chairs.

Jones found no customers.

He was confronted, however, the moment he entered by a young man who proved later to be one of Moroney's two assistants. This particular assistant, short and dark with a brogue, appeared when a buzzer connected with the reception room door sounded as Jones pushed it open.

"Want to see the doctor?" asked the young man.

"If you please," said Jones.

"Right this way," said the attendant, and led the way from the reception room through a narrow hall to an office in the rear marked "Private."

"Dr. Moroney," he said, as he opened it and waved the visitor in. Dr. Moroney sat at his desk hunched forward thumbing his ever-present ledger, or what he should call his "Book of Numbers." The attendant vanished. Presently Moroney looked up and wheeled about, his swivel chair squeaking.

He smiled. "Well, young man," he said pleasantly, "what can I do for you?"

Jones shuffled and fumbled his hat. "Why," he stammered, "a fellow in the United Cigar store, Scollay square, sent me up."

"Oh, a fat fellow," Moroney asked, his eyes lighting up.

Jones nodded.

"Yes, he used to work downstairs," said the doctor. "What seems to be the trouble?" He pushed forth a chair and Jones sat down.

FAST WORKER

"Why," replied Jones haltingly, "I thought I'd see about an examination."

Dr. Moroney lost no time in removing his person from the oak chair. Crossing the room to a dirty and sparsely filled medicine cabinet he took down a dirty test tube.

He gave the investigator certain instructions, then held the test tube up to the window and let the light filter through its contents.

"Well, you've got it," he exclaimed, "and it has affected your kidneys."

He eyed Jones severely and let it sink in.

"I will cure you for $50," added Moroney laying aside the test tube and slipping back into his swival chair.

The chair squeaked a bit. Jones licked his lips feigning the nervousness that is genuine on persons who suddenly find themselves confronted with an unlooked for affliction.

Moroney asked the patient's name and address. Then he gave him a number. "You will have to come twice a week," he ordered. "Tuesdays and Saturdays. I will give you medicine once a week. The medicine will cost you extra, $1.50 a week to be exact. You better give me $10 now."

Jones, having read Moroney's little red book, particularly that paragraph referring to the great doctor's apparent indifference to the dollar in his anxiety to benefit suffering mankind, demurred.

"Well, how much can you give me?" asked the quack nettled.

'TREATMENT' BEGINS

"Jones mentioned $3, but Moroney scoffed. They finally settled on $5 and into the doctor's hand went a $5 bill passed him by Jones.

Jones said: "I would like to have a receipt doctor."

"I'll take care of that," replied Moroney, jotting down the payment in his ledger. "I only want to get paid once."

He called to an assistant. The young man who had received Jones in the reception room appeared.

"Have some medicine mixed," said Moroney and nodded toward Jones.

"Yes sir," replied the assistant. Turning to Jones he said:

Jones followed the young man into a small booth curtained off from the doctor's office. The assistant picked up a small metal roller with a black wooden handle out of which ran an electric wire connected with a small motor which in turn was connected with an electric light socket on the wall. Jones eyed the strange instrument with misgiving.

"If it's a painful treatment," he said, "I don't want to take it here. I'll take it home."

"It is nothing but a massage," said the assistant. "It is one of the many electrical treatments you will receive."

He then turned on the electric current and ran the roller over Jones' back in the vicinity of the kidneys. Jones stood as he did so and tried hard not to laugh as the operation was performed on the outside of his street clothes.

For fifteen minutes the assistant made an impressive ado about that harmless little roller which felt to Jones much like the electric vibrator a barber uses in giving a facial massage.

DIRTY CABINET

Finished, the assistant led the way to what Moroney calls his labratory, a small room with many dirty shelves all filled with large glass jars and bottles containing liquids and powders.

This room was in charge of another assistant, an owl faced young man, dressed in a business suit and having dirty finger nails.

He handed Jones a small vial filled with a dark liquid and two small cartons of pills, one pink, the other brown. All were wrapped in a piece of newspaper. The liquid he directed to mix with water and use as an antiseptic. The brown pills were to be taken, one before each meal, the pink, one only before retiring.

"Will these cure me?" Jones asked the attendant.

"Oh, yes," said that young man, "we have hundreds of these cases. They are all cured."

Jones pocketed his medicine, also a small plain white card on which was crudely stamped this number—"4707."

NO EXAMINATION

He left, on the way to busy Tremont street reflecting as follows:

He had been given no personal examination of any kind by the great Dr. Moroney, who in his little red book boasts of his personal interest in sufferers and describes the thoroughness of his methods of diagnosing.

He had not been told what supposed disease he had contracted.

But he had been told to return in four days and to bring more money.

Moroney, like other quacks the Boston American investigated, never strayed beyond the pocketbook in diagnosing. Their interest began and ended with the dollar as witness what followed:

Jones returned to Moroney on December 8. He pretended he had forgotten his identification card. Conducted to the "Doctor" himself, Jones gave the name he had used on his first call. Moroney was vexed at Jones' apparent stupidity and said so.

He thumbed through his cheap little ledger, then said:

"Your number is 4707. Hereafter don't forget it. How much money have you got?"

Jones replied: "I can give you $5 on account, doctor."

DOCTOR PEEVED

"What?" shouted the "doctor." "I thought you were going to bring me $10. You don't think I'm going to wait three months for the money, do you? I want my money before you are half cured."

"Pay by week or month," reads Moroney's message to mankind in his little red book.

Jones gave him $5.

"Now go out and get your treatment," said the "doctor," crossly. Jones was given the same roller treatment—"Rolling 'em," seems to be Moroney's racket—by the same attendant who had rolled him before.

Jones was to return with more money for the good doctor but he did not do so.

On December 26, however, an investigator whom we will call Smith called on Dr. Moroney. He reached the great man's presence in the same manner as had Jones. Moroney sat at his desk. He was fingering the ever present ledger.

QUICK DIAGNOSIS

"How do you do young man," he said benevolently, wheeling about to face Smith. "What can I do for you?"

"I'd like to have you look me over doctor," said Smith. "I don't feel just right."

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked Moroney.

Smith—"I really don't know, doctor. I was at a party a couple of weeks ago, maybe—."

The physician leaped to his feet and rescued the dirty test tube from its place on top of the dirty cabinet.

He made another of his tests and arrived at a decision as quickly and as easily as he had with Jones.

"Your condition indicates," he said, and named a disease. "It is a mild case but as a rule mild cases turn out the worst. You should start treatment immediately."

"Should I?" asked Smith, feigning both surprise and horror at the indictment.

"Yes, you should," replied the doctor earnestly. I will give you a cash rate of $45 with $1.50 a week extra for medicine."

"I don't think I can pay all cash, doctor," said Smith.

"In that case," said Moroney, "my charges will be $5 a visit, two visits a week with $1.50 extra for medicine."

"That's a little more than I can pay," Smith replied.

"Well, the best arrangement I can make for you, then," said the "doctor," "is three visits a week at $3 each with $1.50 per week for medicine."

"That will be better," replied Smith.

Moroney gave him a number, took three $1 bills from him, refused a receipt, massaged part of Smith's body and ordered him furnished with medicine. Smith with a supposedly different ailment from Jones, received what appeared to be identical medicine, two packets of pills and a phial of liquid with similar directions.

Summing up the results of both investigators' experiences with the great "specialist" and little red book author the Moroney business as carried on by the "doctor" must be a gold mine if left alone.

He plans to extract $10 per week from every poor misguided victim who wanders into his nest.

If he catches 30 victims a week his income per year would amount to $15,000. It is not far fetched to believe he entangles double that number.

Allowing $5,000 per year for expenses the great Moroney then clears as net profit $25,000 per year.

Moroney admits he is successful. In his little red book he writes: "MY SUCCESS IS DUE TO THE CAREFUL EXAMINATION I MAKE IN EVERY CASE AIDED BY SCIENTIFIC DIAGNOSTIC APPLIANCES."

More Doctors Laud Expose of Quacks

More indorsements of the Boston American's expose of quack doctors in Greater Boston have been made by the leaders of the medical profession in this city. The following is from Dr. James S. Stone of the Back Bay:

"Editor,

"Boston American,

"For a number of years the Massachusetts Medical Society and the Massachusetts Homeopathic Medical Society have tried to induce the Legislature to raise the standards for the registration of physicians in this state, in order to exclude those not properly qualified. Representatives of two medical schools located in Massachusetts which are authoritatively classed as among the six poorest schools in the United States have opposed higher standards.

"When the people realize that the Licensing Boards of forty-six States refuse even to examine the graduates of these low grade schools, they will understand why low-ranked physicians are compelled to come to Massachusetts. Conditions demand either a complete reorganization, or an abandonment of these low grade schools.

"I am sure that the physicians of Massachusetts cordially endorse the efforts of the Boston American to rid the State of unqualified and unworthy practitioners and I earnestly hope that the public will be brought to understand the need of higher standards of education, and of a strong board of registration in order to safeguard the future.

"Dr. James S. Stone."

By BETTY ALDEN

DUDLEY PICKMAN, JR., of Beacon street is down at Palm Beach as the guest of his Myopia "pal," Harold S. Vanderbilt, better known as "Mike" to his intimates.

Mr. Pickman, who is one of Boston's most eligible if reticent bachelors, spends his Summers along the North Shore at the Beverly Cove estate of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Pickman. Not far distant is "Round Plain Farm," the Caswell place at Beverly, where Mr. Vanderbilt passes the mid-Summer months.

The Palm Beach villa of the prominent New York yachtsman—he's commodore of the New York Yacht Club—is known as "El Solano." Other guests of "Mike" Vanderbilt include Gerald Hoyt, John Gaston and Frederick Allen, the latter having many connections there.

SPEAKING of Palm Beach—or the American Riviera, as it is now frequently called—one of the notable members of the Boston colony there is Mrs. Leonard Ahl.

Mrs. L. Ahl
Noetzel Studios

Mr. and Mrs. Ahl whose place at one gay southern resort is known as "Nautilus Cottage," were among the dinner hosts at the opening of the fashionable Everglades Club the other evening.

Some 350 members of the colony attended the opening dinner of the club, which was followed by dancing in the Orange Gardens. These general dinners will be held on Thursday and Saturday evenings throughout the season.

QUITE as dashing as ever was Mrs. Harry Pratt McKean when she appeared at the senior supper dance the other evening.

Mrs. McKean, she was formerly Bessie Lee, is a tall brunette. Her gown was of black lace over creme color satin. The wide border of leopard fur banding the skirt gave to the dress quite an unusual look. Her dark hair was banded with sand color crepe.

Mrs. McKean is one of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee's quartet of daughters, and known all along the Shore for her good sportsmanship. Mr. and Mrs. McKean and their young family live at "Willow Tree Farm," Beverly Farms.

DINOSAURS used to lay eggs. You know that. Did you know, also, that they had gizzards and that scientists find in skeletons of dinosaurs large, finely polished pebbles with which the dinosaur's gizzard ground up food, as the hen now grinds her food with gravel in her gizzard?

And did you know that the hen of today is the direct descendant of the dinosaur seventy feet long? The hen would probably object to that statement, while Mr. Bryan objects to Darwin's theory. But in both cases the facts are overwhelming.

A big dinosaur would weigh 200,000 pounds. What Burbank will reverse evolution's process and give us a chicken of that size?

ENGLAND discusses, seriously, abolishing the gold standard. The United States having half of all the gold available for money, it wouldn't be bad, from the English viewpoint, to select another standard. But for the present, the thing can't be done.

Men demand something in the way of money that can't be created artificially. Silver might do, but we have that also. Abolish the gold standard and you won't abolish gold's value.

Curiously enough, Russia, home of the misty ruble, is to go on a gold basis in April. They have discovered that paper won't do.

ENGLAND'S great railroad strike is the most important news from Europe. Stranded railroad trains are scattered all over the country. Hundreds of thousands of engine drivers say they propose to let the railroad owners go without profits for a year. And curiously enough a Labor Prime Minister and a Labor cabinet will probably be in charge of England and the strike next week. The pound drops in value.

MORE than eighty years ago, the late Albert Brisbane, who wrote for the front page of Horace Greeley's New York Tribune, asked the good men of New England who advocated abolition of slavery: "Since you are so much interested in the poor black slaves, why don't you free your own white women that you drive into your mills before daylight and keep there until dark?"

Albert Brisbane, by the way, used to pay Horace Greeley cash for the right to write his opinions on the Tribune's first page. His unworthy son has a better financial arrangement.

BRITAIN will soon launch two gigantic new battleships with all the latest improvements, 680 feet long and 106 feet wide. Over here we are junking battleships half finished to oblige England. She is unable to compete with us, industrially, in battleship construction, but admirably able to befuddle us diplomatically. She did that at the Washington Conference, and now tells our baby boy diplomats that we may not even increase the elevation of our guns. That would make them shoot farther.

SCARLET FEVER NOT A MENACE AT WELLESLEY

Students Asked Not to Attend Public Gatherings While Two Students Have Mild Cases

Wellesley College students have been requested by the college authorities not to attend public gatherings because of the illness of two students from scarlet fever. Both students are confined to a hospital outside the college grounds and their illness is of a mild form.

College officials today denied that any portion of the institution has been quarantined or that an epidemic of any sort is prevalent.

"There are no cases of measles and only two very light cases of scarlet fever," said an official in President Pendleton's office. "Both those cases are confined to a hospital. No part of the college has been quarantined. The students have been requested not to attend any public gatherings."

BOK OFFERS TO DUPLICATE PEACE PRIZE

Will Pay $100,000 More to Any Plan Selected by Senate Inquiry Committee

Washington, Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—Edward Bok, originator and promoter of the $100,000 peace plan project, came back at his Senatorial inquisitors today with a startling offer.

In a letter to Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Bok offered to turn over to the Senate Investigating Committee all of the 22,164 peace plans submitted in the recent contest, and allow the Senators to select the plan which they believed to be the best.

Bok agreed to pay the winner they selected the sum of $100,000—the same amount he offered for the previous plan.

DEFENDS HIS SUIT.

"I also will agree to defray the expenses of a nation-wide referendum if desired, and in all respects give the plan which your committee selects the same financial support accorded by me to the present plan," said Bok.

Bok's offer was contained in a letter in which he defended his refusal to tell the Senatorial committee how much money he was spending to circularize and promote his peace plan project.

"I am strengthened in my belief that you have no right to enter into my personal affairs," Bok said. "However, if you still differ with me, on this point, and if the law gives you the right which you claim, there is no reason why you should not seek this from those who can give you the definite information which I do not possess.

"Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., is treasurer of the award and the Girard Trust Company of Philadelphia is the custodian of the fund at their disposal for the purpose of the award.

"My absolute confidence in the jury of the American peace award is such that I believe they carried out the purpose of the award and selected 'the most practical plan' by which the United States may co-operate with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world."

CONFIDENCE IN JURY.

"If, however, you do not share my confidence in Elihu Root, General James G. Harbord, Colonel Edward M. House, Miss Ellen F. Pendleton, Dean Roscoe Pound, William Allen White, and Brand Whitlock, I hereby make your committee the following proposal:

"I will ask (and since the power is theirs I can only ask) the policy committee of the American Peace Award that the 22,164 plans submitted be turned over to your committee.

"If in the judgment of your committee, there is found a more practical plan than the one selected by the jury named above by which the United States may co-operate with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world, I shall be glad to give to the author of the plan selected by your committee, the sum of $100,000, under the following conditions: the payment to the author of $50,000 when your committee has selected the better plan, and $50,000 to the author, if and when the plan in substance and intent is approved by the United States Senate."

IF RHEUMATIC BEGIN ON SALTS

Says We Must Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets and Take Jad Salts.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

"Whistling Lyd" Hutchinson Bound From New York to Montreal Carnival

Port Henry, N. Y., Jan. 22.—"Whistling Lyd" Hutchinson, Idaho woman dog team driver, left here behind a team of seven huskies with a sled load of provisions and fur robes bound overland for the Winter sports carnival at Montreal. She refused to permit anyone to accompany her, saying her huskies, road maps and an electric torch would serve to bring her safely into Plattsburgh. She was due there today.

Although the temperature has dropped to 20 and 25 below zero in this section, she said she expected to continue on through the night without stopping until she reached Plattsburgh. Upon her arrival at Montreal, Miss Hutchinson plans to select a team of huskies to compete in the February 22 dog team race at Ashton, Idaho. She said she expected to reach Montreal Thursday, if the trails have snow enough to carry the sled.

LYNN BARBER IS JAILED AS "SNIPPER"

Man With Jail Record Charged With New Attempt to Mutilate Girl's Hair

John D. Bachellor, known to the Lynn police as "Jack the Snipper," was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction by Judge Ralph W. Reeve today in Lynn District Court, after a ten-year old girl testified he attempted to attack her when she went to his barber shop at Summer and Church streets, to have her hair bobbed.

Bacheller is fifty-three years old. According to the police he had a mania for standing in the door of his shop with scissors in hand and snipping locks of hair from girls who pass on the way to and from school.

At various times he has served sentences in the house of correction totalling six years and eight months for stealing locks of hair from girls.

According to the child on whose complaint Bacheller is now under arrest, she was accompanied by a younger sister when she went to the barber shop.

Police have had Bacheller under surveillance for more than a week following the complaint of telephone operators that they have been followed late at night by a man whom they thought to be Bacheller.

What Kind Of Blood Have You?

Thin, Pale and Watery—Keeping You Weak, Nervous and Rundown, or Rich, Red Healthy Blood With Plenty of Iron in it To Give You Strength, Energy, Power and Endurance?

IRON IS RED BLOOD FOOD

Says Physician

How NUXATED IRON Puts Roses into the Cheeks of Women and Helps Give Renewed Strength to Men.

If you tire easily, if you look pale, haggard and worn, if you feel generally weak, nervous and run-down it would probably astonish you to look at a drop of your own blood under a powerful microscope and compare it with a drop of pure, healthy blood—rich in iron. Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill lack iron in their blood and that they are ill for no other reason than lack of iron.

For want of iron you may practically be an old woman at from 30 to 35, weak, downhearted and "all fagged out." You may be in such a highly nervous, irritable state that you "go all to pieces" on the slightest provocation, while at 50 or 60 with good health and plenty of iron in your blood, you may still be young in feeling and so attractive and full of life as to defy detection of your real age.

"Iron is red blood food," says Dr. E. Sauer, "and organic iron—Nuxated Iron—helps to build up the red blood corpuscles and give increased power and endurance."

Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such a highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating half a quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples.

Plenty of Iron makes rich, red blood corpuscles like these.	Lack of Iron makes weak, pale blood corpuscles like these.

It's not always the youngest woman that is most sought after—there is an indescribably alluring fascination in the rosy cheek, the inviting lips and sparkling eyes of a woman whose blood is filled with iron. You may be afflicted with iron starvation of the blood and not know it, just as thousands of other women are.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using NUXATED IRON. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It often increases the bodily and mental vigor, strength and endurance of weak, nervous, "run-down" folks in two weeks' time. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results. Beware of substitutes. Nuxated Iron comes in tablets only—never in liquid form. Always look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD—GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH & ENERGY

'BAD BOY' OF 73 IN CELL; FEARS MA'S WRATH

George Doty Is Accused of Breaking a Window and Stealing a Phonograph

New York, Jan. 22.—George Doty, the seventy-three-year-old "bad boy," has been having an awful time since he went to jail for breaking a window.

He was peeved today when he found the new shoes his mother bought him are too large.

"Look at them," muttered the bearded, white-haired boy as he sat in his cell. "They look like canal boats. I wear a number eight and these are nines. I told mother I wear eights. She always bought me a size too large in everything so I would have room to grow to them. Feel of those shoes, will you. It's too bad."

George was located in jail last weeks by his ninety-two-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary Jane Laitteer, and he didn't know then whether she was going to take him over her knee or not.

But, mother-like, she didn't spank him. Instead she began efforts to get him released. It will be a week, though, before he knows whether he is to spend a year in the Home for the Aged, a reformatory for incorrigible boys, or go home with mother.

He is charged with walking off with a phonograph after he broke the window of a Brooklyn shop.

His mother is making a gallant effort to take him home.

"I told them," she said today, "that I want to take him home because I know better than anyone how to handle him."

$175,000 BLAZE IN NORTH SYDNEY, N. S.

North Sydney, N. S., Jan. 22.—Seven buildings in the business section were destroyed by fire and three other buildings seriously damaged today, causing a loss of $175,000.

Among the buildings destroyed were the Rudderham building, the Salvation Army citadel and the Masonic Hall. Mrs. Charles White and two children, who resided in the top story of the Rudderham building, were rescued by firemen.

CEMENT TO CUT SHOE PRICES, SAYS SLATER

Philadelphia, Jan. 22.—Prices of shoes will drop the next few years said J. J. Slater, treasurer of the National Shoe Retailers' Association, addressing a convention of the association. "New processes and new machines will lower the cost of production and therefore the price to consumer," Mr. Slater said. "One process is for cementing shoes, which will do away with stitching, and make the price of cheap shoes even cheaper."

When the INDICAN Shows ---Beware

Constipation means danger. Not because it makes your head ache. Nor because it makes your breath foul, your taste bad and stomach bilious. And not because it saps your pep.

The danger in constipation is its poison, warn physicians. This poison is pumped into every little muscle and every little joint in your body. Beware!

Do you dare to make a test to prove this? Three out of four constipated men and women under such a test show the presence of INDICAN, and Indican is the sign doctors look for to find out if your blood is poisoned.

Carter's Liver Pills, unlike ordinary laxatives, not only "physic" the stomach, liver and intestines quickly but also drive the INDICAN away!

Make This Test: Have an analysis made of your specimen, and if the chemist reports the presence of INDICAN—or if you can "feel" how poisoned you are because of headaches, sallow complexion, no appetite and bad stomach—immediately start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills.

When you feel out of sorts, no appetite, bad stomach, foul breath—a test usually indicates INDICAN, just as in the picture.	Same person, after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills for only a few days—note the clean, normal specimen—FREE FROM INDICAN.

Next, have another test made and see how the INDICAN disappears. Now your clear, bright complexion, free from pimples and blackheads, comes back—you can EAT heartily—you feel fit as a kid, in most cases.

Important: Carter's Little Liver Pills, used for 67 years by millions of people all over the world, is a purely vegetable preparation and contains no drugs of any nature. It therefore acts in a natural way and is non-habit forming. Money refunded if results are not satisfactory.

"3 O'Clock in the Morning" more than a song to this man

A Milkman's experience with REM for coughs

Pittsburgh at 3 o'clock some cold winter morning—damp banks of fog rolling up from the river—flurries of snow out of the blackness overhead. Cold, dreary—and a fine place to catch a cold and cough.

To most of us it can remain an imaginary picture—but to John R. Burland when he starts out on his early morning milk route, hours before sunrise, it is stern reality.

> "I'm a milkman," says Mr. Burland, "out in all kinds of weather. I'm with the Harmony Creamery.
> "REM stopped a terrible cough for me last winter. I'd been coughing night and day till I took it. It was a deep, dry cough. After a few doses of REM the phlegm loosened and the cough left me.
> "I start out at 3 o'clock in the morning, have been doing it for years."

So many who have tried REM speak of the quick relief it brings.

This quick action is not just a matter of luck, for REM contains a special ingredient (too expensive for old-style, slower-acting cough syrups) that causes it to cling to your throat as it is swallowed. And there it spreads a soothing, healing film over the sore, inflamed membranes.

REM is pleasant to take and contains no Opiates. Ask your druggist for REM—in the blue package with the round orange label. If REM doesn't help you you can have your money back. Fair enough, isn't it?

SUMMONS FALL IN PROBE OF TEAPOT DOME

Criminal Prosecution of Men Involved in Scandal is Expected

Washington, Jan. 22.—The Senate committee investigating the Teapot Dome oil leases ordered ex-Secretary Albert B. Fall back to Washington for further examination. A subpoena was telegraphed to him at New Orleans, notifying him to be here Friday morning to testify.

When informed that he had been subpoenaed former Secretary Albert B. Fall said at New Orleans that, upon receipt of official information, he would return to Washington.

"I shall welcome the opportunity to tell the committee all I know about the lease" he said, but added he wanted to take his wife, who is ill, to El Paso before returning to Washington.

IN FOR A GRILLING.

The committee will ask Fall again regarding the sources from which he obtained $100,000 in 1921 to enlarge his ranch holdings in New Mexico. The former secretary is now on record before the committee as asserting that he obtained the money from Edward B. McLean, the Washington newspaper publisher, but the latter has testified that the checks he gave Mr. Fall were returned uncashed.

L. Walsh

Archie Roosevelt

Gratian T. Stanford, counsel for the Sinclair Oil interests, who hold the Teapot Dome lease, was subpoenaed to appear at today's hearing for questioning about the alleged payment of $68,000 which figured in limony given yesterday. Archie oosevelt testified he had been told y G. D. Wahlberg, secretary to arry F. Sinclair, that he had seen ncelled checks for $68,000 made out the foreman of the Fall ranch. Mr. Wahlberg later took the nd and said he never made such tatement.

[illegible] CHECKBOOKS.

From Mr. Stanford and other offi[illegible] Sinclair interests the committee also sought evidence [illegible] lay regarding the checkbooks and ther records of the various Sinclair companies.

Criminal prosecution of some of ne persons involved in the leasing f the great naval oil reserve by x-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall to Harry F. Sinclair was declared to be probable as a result of the startling revelations made to the Senate Public Lands Committee by Archie Roosevelt, son of the late President, and G. D. Walberg, both of whom have resigned from Sinclair's employ because of "suspicion of corruption" in connection with the leases.

For years both Roosevelt and Walberg have been right-hand men of Sinclair. Walberg had access to the business and private check books of the oil man, which, he told the Senate Public Lands Committee, had been hurriedly taken out of the office just before Sinclair sailed for Paris last Wednesday.

Charlie Punched

MILDRED HARRIS.

MARY MILES MINTER.

CHAPLIN GETS A BLACK EYE IN CAFE QUARREL

Resents Remarks of a Comedian and Receives a Hard Punch

Los Angeles, Jan. 22.—Mr. Charles Spencer Chaplin, who has done the share of twenty men to make the world forget its troubles, is still wearing the black eye, the beautiful shiner, that was presented to him in a Hollywood restaurant.

Charlie could paint a black eye that would make millions laugh, but this one is no laughing matter. The famous little actor wears it "without a make-up."

Mr. Chaplin sat at a table with Mary Miles Minter and other friends.

A party of four men and four young women came to an adjacent table. In this party was Mildred Harris, the former Mrs. Chaplin.

One of the men began making funny cracks about Chaplin. The latter overheard one, which he thought to be offensive, and took objections to it. The comedian at the next table then handed Mr. Chaplin a punch. Charlie did not duck soon enough. Hence, the eye in deep mourning.

Other diners separated the men, and when Chaplin recovered his poise he offered to step outside with any gentleman present. There were no takers.

ALCOHOL SEIZED IN RAID ON BARN

Braintree, Jan. 22.—Chief of Police Galvin, assisted by six prohibition agents raided a barn at No. 71 Grant street, South Braintree, where they seized 800 gallons of alchohol in a corner of the barn and 300 gallons in a huge still.

The police arrested John Costa, of No. 42 Chelsea street, South Braintree, and Salvadore Squela, of No. 32 Charter street, Braintree who were charged with keeping and exposing intoxicating liquors.

MEXICANS ARE CLOSING RING ON REBELS

Retreating Insurgent Forces Are Cut Off; Obregon Ready for a Decisive Battle

Mexico City, Jan. 22 (I.N.S.)—President Obregon's Federal army on the western battle front has succeeded in cutting off the retreat of the Rebels under General Enrique Estrada, according to advices received by the War Department today.

Skirmishing is taking place, but so far the main armies of the opposing forces have not come to grips.

The Federal army, totaling about 13,000 men, has driven the Rebels to a point fifteen miles east of La Piedad, State of Michoacan. Cavalry brushes are taking place constantly.

Estrada is trying to offset the Federal airplanes by active use of his mounted troops. The Rebels have no air forces.

It is understood President Obregon, by skillful strategy, has won his own choice of a battle field and is now ready to engage Estrada's army of 7,500 Rebels in decisive action.

Estrada's army has been weakened by the detachment of two strong columns for raiding purposes.

Only skirmishing is reported from the southeastern where War Secretary Serrano is leading an army upon Vera Cruz. The Rebels are concentrated near Esperanza, but so far the Federals have not seen fit to engage them in decisive combat.

President Obregon has telegraphed to Congressman Enrique Breceda that he will "protect all political opponents who keep within the law."

Stern justice will be meted out to the Rebel leaders, especially the army officers who joined the revolt.

SHOE WORKERS HOURS UP TO CITIZENS

Haverhill Jan. 22.—Unable to settle the controversy in regard to the hours of labor that shall apply in the local shoe industry, the Shoe Manufacturers' Association and the Shoe Workers' Protective Union will submit the dispute to a citizens' committee of seven members. The manufacturers want a five-hour Saturday morning and eight hours and forty minutes every other day, claiming the workmen are never at their benches on the opening hour. The union wants a three-hour Saturday and nine hours every other day.

TREADWAYS HOST TO LARGE PARTY

Washington, Jan. 22.—The Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks were the honor guests at a dinner given by Representative and Mrs. Treadway at Meridian Mansions.

Among the Massachusetts people present were Representative and Mrs. Winslow, Representative and Mrs. Rogers, Representative and Mrs. Paige, Representative and Mrs. Underhill, and Under Secretary of State and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Snow of Greenfield.

MAJOR'S FROLIC COST 2569 MEN, SAYS LOGAN

Former Staff Chief of 26th Division Promoted Despite Opposition of Ex-Colleagues

Washington, Jan. 22.—Officers who came into the 26th Division from the National Guard, officials of the American Legion in New England, and in general all the Y. D. supporters of Major-General Edwards, suffered a not unexpected setback when the Senate Committee on Military Affairs reported "favorably" to the Senate the promotion of Lieutenant-Colonel Duncan K. Major to a full colonelcy.

Unless Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts and Senator Brookhart of Iowa insist upon having the nomination considered in an open session of the Senate, the promotion may be considered on Friday.

Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, chairman of the committee, who reported the nomination to the Senate, announces that he will fight consideration in an open session with all the strength at his command. "The Senate," Mr. Wadsworth insists, "always considers nominations behind closed doors.'

SLAUGHTER A "FROLIC."

Duncan K. Major was chief of staff of the 26th or Yankee Division under Major General Edwards' command. Brigadier-General Edward L. Logan of Boston, who commanded one of the infantry regiments of the division, testified before the committee to matters in France which General Logan said, "clearly indicated Major's professional incompetency."

General Logan testified that Major described beforehand as "only a frolic," an order which he placed in Logan's hands and which resulted in the loss of more men than the 101st had lost in the whole war up to that time, October 21, 1918.

"About how many men were lost?" Senator Warren inquired.

General Logan's figures showed a loss of 2,569.

Senator Lodge—"Was this the 'frolic?'"

FRIENDS CONFIDENT.

In the official records of the War Department it appears that General Edwards has written his opinion of Lieutenant-Colonel Major in the following words:

"I am now forced to regard him as disloyal to me, and so lacking in tact and kindliness as to be practically disliked and condemned by the whole division. He is personally gallent, and did a fine piece of work on the twenty-fourth of July, guiding a raw regiment of the 28th Division into battle as well a assiduous in inspecting front lines under dangerous enemy fire.

"Greatest ability demonstrated in theoretical planning and supervising of problems, especially relating to infantry. He is constitutionally incapable of co-ordinating a staff; he personally antagonizes all officers with whom he comes in contact.

"He is headstrong to a degree that he cannot give proper value to the opinion of others; in the case of his commander, this results in the officers lacking loyalty; the result to inferors is to incur animosity.

"He is independent and vindictive, relies on textbooks and theory, and gives little heed to the morale gained by human touch and tolerance."

BOYS ADMIT LIE ABOUT SEEING MAN SLAIN

Chelsea Youths Retract Yarn That Watchman Was Hurled Into Harbor

Acting on the strange story of two Chelsea boys that they had seen the body of a man thrown overboard at Parson's Wharf, Chelsea, by two other men, the harbor police dragged the harbor and recovered the body of a man who had been missing since Jan. 1.

The body was identified as that of John Toland, fifty-five years old, single, of No. 160 Chestnut street, Chelsea, until the time of his disappearance the watchman of a lighter at Oak's Wharf. He was last seen Jan. 1 walking along Parson's Wharf. The body was found near the Meridian street bridge.

It has been removed to the Northern Mortuary, where an autopsy will be conducted. The Chelsea police are puzzled as to how Toland met his death.

The first theory that Toland was thrown into the water by two negroes, as the two boys first informed the police, was abandoned when, questioned by the police, the boys retracted their story and declared they had seen the body of the man floating in the harbor. The story concerning the two negroes was only a fabrication, the boys admitted.

ASKS LONG WAGE AGREEMENT FOR MINERS

Would Eliminate Coal Legislation by Congress and States, Says Lewis

Indianapolis, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—A wage agreement for a term of years without a strike or suspension of production, would be of constructive help in restoring stability to the industry and would be a boon to the coal-wearied public, John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, declared in his report to the sixth biennial convention of the organization here today. The present wage agreement with the operators expires March [illegible]

"Were such an agrement possible it would demonstrate to the coal consuming public that the industry itself was making a sincere attempt to place its house in order," President Lewis declared. "Such a policy if carried out would eliminate the necessity for coal legislation by the Federal Congress or the various State Legislatures."

The president scored the United States Coal Commission, which he declared had expended some $600,000 of money and "lacked the wisdom to properly portray this situation and make practical recommendations for permanent reform within the industry."

President Lewis refrained from offering any recommendation on wage matters, declaring it wise to wait until the scale committee has canvassed the situation.

Captain F. D. Karns, U. S. N., has been designated by Admiral de Steiguer to act as liaison officer and to work with the city committee. All naval craft and such personnel of the navy as available will be placed at the disposal of the Mayor's committee.

HUNTER DISCOVERS HEADLESS BODY

Bay Ocean, Ore., Jan. 1[illegible].—While hunting ducks, Arthur Springer of this place discovered the headless body of a man on the beach a half mile from the channel entrance to Tillamook Bay. Partly covering the remains was the remnant of blue serge trousers. The coroner surmised that the man is one of four who lost their lives in the wreck of the launch Phoenix, lost recently in [illegible] sea off the coast.

SHEPPARD REALIZES LIFE'S AMBITION

SPORTING AMERICAN

B. C. FOOTBALL WARRIORS DON NAPKIN

Boston College will banquet its football warriors at the City Club tonight. In past years this has been a hectic time for the wearers of the pigskin and from all indications this season's meal will be the greatest of all.

GENARO AND SHEPPARD IN BIG CLASSIC AT TRIPLE A TONIGHT

WOBURN BOY'S PUNCH MAY BEAT CHAMPION

By JACK CONWAY.

Jock Dillon

This is the brilliant ring classic which will be staged at Mechanics Building tonight under the direction of the Armory A. A. It is the most important tussle between little men to be staged in Boston in years and will attract fans from all parts of New England.

Genaro and Sheppard are midget packages of T. N. T. Both are heavy punchers, also relentless, determined fighters.

The rival ring gladiators are on the scene of the conflict. Each is confident of victory.

Genaro arrived in town accompanied by Manager Phil Bernstein. After a strenuous workout at Kelly & Hayes' Gym, where he thrilled a big crowd by his amazing ability as a boxer, Genaro and Bernstein went to the office of the Boxing Commission in the State House.

Bernstein informed the commission he was prepared to match Genaro with Villa in Boston and asked for the assistance of the commission in forcing the Filipino to agree to terms.

Genaro has already defeated Villa three times. He won the American flyweight title by handing Villa a pasting. The Filipino later captured the world's championship by winning over Jimmy Wilde.

Since then Villa has dodged a meeting with Genaro. You can hardly blame him, as the little New York Italian has his number. When you lose a popular decision to a rival and are then tossed for losses in two decision contests, it is apparent you are outclassed.

SHEPPARD MAY HAND GENARO SEVERE JOLT.

Although Genaro can defeat Villa, he ,is very liable to be conquered by Sheppard tonight. The latter will have a few pounds on his rival, while he also is more aggressive and a heavier puncher.

Genaro is a 10 to 8 favorite, but this does not mean anything. Betting odds are about the biggest joke in the world.

But Taylor, conqueror of Villa, ruled a choice over Sheppard when this pair of midget fighters clashed before 10,000 fans at Indianapolis. And Sheppard won easily.

Abe Friedman was also the choice over Sheppard, only to be walloped in each of the ten rounds.

Phil O'Dowd, who has a decision to his credit over Joe Lynch, was also picked to upset Sheppard. He, too, went down to defeat before the irresistible drive of the rugged lad from Woburn.

WOBURN YOUTH IS WINNING FIGHTER.

Sheppard is what the speculative gentlemen term a "winning fighter." He is on the crest of a victory wave and is liable to toss any boxer in the world for a loss. The hardest type of athlete to defeat is one, who, like Sheppard, has stored a flock of triumphs and considers himself unbeatable.

The fact that the Armory Club has secured the assurance of Joe Lynch that he will defend his bantamweight title against Sheppard if the latter disposes of Genaro, is another reason why the Woburn youth will go in and give everything he has in a fighting line tonight.

Sheppard has had ample experience, he has battled all through the Middle West as well as in New England. He has also been coached by Manager Paddy Minehan, Jimmy Gardner and Jake Kilrain.

In addition to all this, Sheppard is a natural fighter, a two-fisted punching fool. Unlike most free hitters, Sheppard has the boxing class which enables him to get to close quarters without getting hit. Once within the five-inch zone, Johnny is a deadly menace to his rivals. He hits harder than any little fellow in the world.

Sheppard has carefully studied Genaro's style. He saw the American champion in his winning Boston bout against Bobby Wolgast. He figures he will be able to drive his way to close quarters and that he will then be able to lower the colors of his opponent by heavy body smashes.

Genaro has gone on record as stating he will battle Sheppard at his own game, that he will disregard clever milling to swap blows with the Woburn youth who is hailed as another Terry McGovern. This means a bitter, spectacular contest.

There is tremendous interest in this bout and it is expected that the largest crowd of the season will be on hand to witness festivities.

The fact there will be popular prices despite the heavy purse the club had to hang up to land this match has made a hit with the fans.

There will also be three eights. Jack Dillon of Woburn will clash with Al Walthers of Providence, Hughie Kennedy of Pawtucket will mingle with Young Theroux of Nashua, while Johnny Duffy of Lowell will take on Frankie LaBate of Brockton.

Jack Conway Picks Genaro to Win in Ring Classic

Jack Conway, holder of the world's record for picking winners, hands out the following dope on tonight's Armory A. A. show at Mechanics building:

"Frankie Genaro, American flyweight king and three-time conqueror of Pancho Villa, and Johnny Sheppard of Woburn should furnish a fast, spectacular battle, replete with bitter fighting and hard punching.

"Genaro is the better boxer; Sheppard has a big edge on punching power and aggressiveness.

"We are picking Genaro to win, though Sheppard may upset the dope and parade to victory as he did in his contests with Bud Taylor, Abe Friedman and Phil O'Dowd."

LEVER RUNS IN INVITATION SPRINT

Harold "Boots' Lever and Loren Murchison will furnish a thrilling duel in the invitation 40 yard dash at the Knights of Columbus games in Mechanics Hall, Saturday night.

Loren Murchison

'Boots' Lever is a former University of Pennsylvania track captain and is one of the fastest sprinters in America.

Lever won the I. C. A. A. A. 100 yard championship at Philadelphia last spring and when one considers the classy field of sprinters he was stacked against, one is forced to admit that the former collegian is a star of the first magnitude.

In winning that title, "Boots" was clocked at 9 7-10 seconds.

Murchison, with all his string of record-breaking sprints, never has been clocked under 10 seconds in the century.

Murchison and Lever had many strenuous duels in indoor meets last Winter and the battles were as full of thrills as a Frenchman is of gesticulations.

Lever carried off the honors when he won the 70-yard sprint in the indoor intercollegiates and shattered the world's record for the distance.

Murchison, if his running in the New York meets furnishes any criterion, is in splendid shape, for he made excellent time in the sprint.

Lever has worked out under his old coach, Lawson Robertson, and says he is in A-1 condition.

MEDFORD AND RINDGE TRACK TEAMS MEET

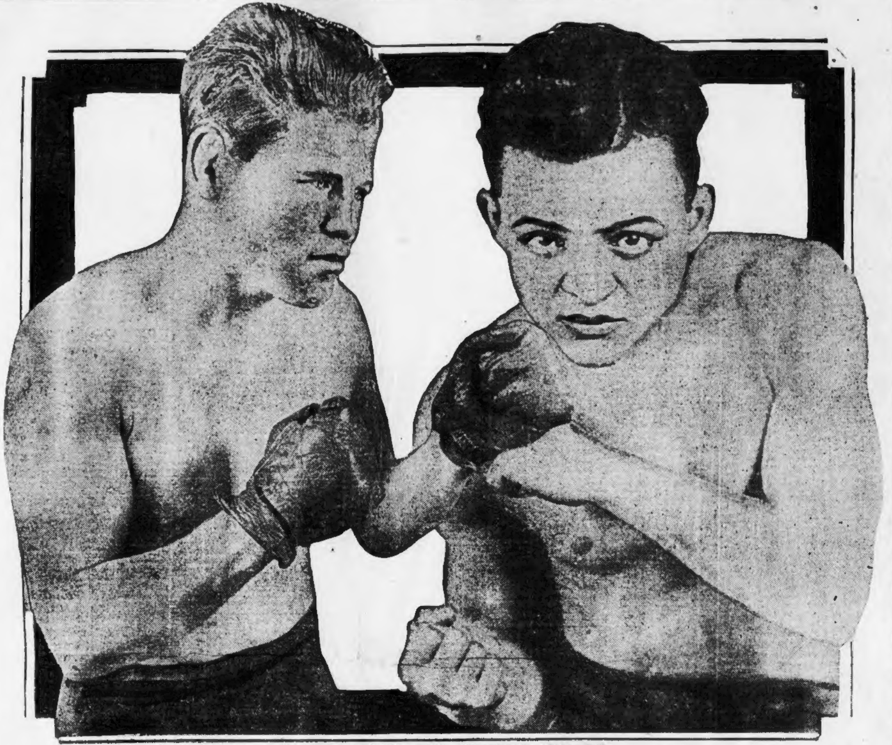
The Medford High track team will clash with Rindge Tech on next Friday afternoon at the Medford High gymnasium.

Hank Moore and Hennie Hormel will run in the dash and 300-yard event. Ted Gan, Archie Surrette and George Kee will perform in the 600-yards run. Joe Orpen and Knox are looked upon as sure point winners in the 1,000-yard event. Harold Moody, Marrio Manfre, Parshley, Howe and Tatton are the field event stars who will face Rindge.

The Medford relay team will be composed of Reardon, Hormell, Ellis and Hank Moore.

Faculty Manager Ralph Kendall has entered the quartet in the K. of C. games. They will meet Newton in a relay race.

BATTLERS IN THE ARMORY A. A. MAIN BOUT



JOHNNY SHEPPARD; FRANKIE GENARO

BOSTON BOXERS WIN TRI-CITY TOURNEY

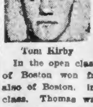
Mike Malinsky of this city and William Davies of Pittsburgh furnished the big thrills of the tri-city amateur boxing tournament at Mechanics Building. The Smoky City lad was declared the winner after three rounds of very rugged boxing. Although defeated, the Boston entry gave an exhibition of self-defence that amazed the large crowd.

Mike Malinsky

Boston boys took the honors. They won three of the four classes. Davies was the only outside battler to get a first prize. He won in the 112-pound class.

Eddie Zine of Boston won the award from Johnny Moore of Philadelphia in the 118-pound class, while Val Fernandez of Boston took the 135-pound title by default when Freddie Boylston was forced to retire because of an injured hand.

In one of the most sensational bouts ever seen in Boston, Al Mello of Lowell defeated Hugh Hagerty of Pittsburgh in three of the hardest-fought rounds of the tournament.



Tom Kirby

In the open classes John Berman of Boston won from Ed Thomas, also of Boston, in the 126-pound class. Thomas was forced to quit after one round, as he suffered a cut over the right eye.

One of the biggest surprises was when Bartie O'Neil outpointed Tom Kirby of Roxbury and got the decision in the final of the 160-pound class.

Edward Mulloney knocked out two opponents in the trials and Henry Schael in the finals in the heavyweight class. None of his opponents lasted a full round.

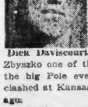
"Toots" Mondt, the rapid-fire Colorado cowboy wrestler, has given Promoter Tuohey carte blanche in the matter of selecting an opponent for him for the night of January 30 in Mechaincs Building.



Dick Daviscourt

Tuohey is anxious to get Paul Zanovich, the Lithuanian, who gave "Stan" Zbyszko one of the toughest battles the big Pole ever had, when they clashed at Kansas City a short time ago.

Both Mondt and Zanovich are after the crown of Strangler Lewis.

Dick Daviscourt will probably meet Jack (Orlando) Sampson, while Frank Judson will meet the best available opponent on the same program.

Stone Battles Exeter

Stone School hockey team will meet Exeter Academy sextet at the Exeter rink tomorrow. The players who will go to Exeter are: Manager Rice, Captain Gilbert, Wally, Lean, Willard, Holland, Phillips, Osborn, Meyers and Maher.

OVERTIME GAME GOES TO THE MAPLE A. A.

Again the unfortunate Boston College team tasted defeat, but only after an overtime period of ten minutes. They were turned back by the strong and flashy Maple Club sextet at the Arena, by the score of 2 to 1.

Sonny Foley

The contest was chock full of action from the very start until the final bell of the extra session.

Leo Hughes, the former Maroon and Gold star, was the man to defeat his old team mates, when he slashed the puck into the net after forty-seven seconds of play in the extra period. He scored the other counter for the Maples in the second period.

"Sonny Foley was the honor man for Boston College as usual. The blonde haired youth scored the only tally for the boys from University Heights and at all stages of the game was the leading light.

In all the plays "Sonny" was right there and gave action. His body checking and stick handling were superior to any players on the ice. The little fellow came through with a counter in the opening session when he wiggled through the en- the Maple team and caged the disc. It was a very fine piece of work on the little fellow's part.

Jack Fitzgerald was the cat's meow in the net and caused a lot of bother for the opposition, in the way he defended his position. Time and again he was forced to turn aside mean and nasty drives. He took the ainr and got a minute penalty as he tossed his stick at the puck.

It was a cunning trick that Fitzy put over and he got a rise out of the gathering of fans on another occasion when he came out of the net only to clash with one of the Maple players who was sent hurtling over his back into the net.

Besides Foley, Groden, Mullowney, McIntyre, Culhane, P. Fitzgerald and Williams showed well for Boston.

Freezing Weather Prevents Racing at New Orleans

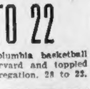
New Orleans, Jan. 22.—Fair Grounds racing officials declared the race program scheduled yesterday off on account of frozen conditions of the track.

Presiding Judge Murphy stated that the danger to life and limb for jockeys and horses was too great to risk running of the card under the extraordinary weather conditions.

HARVARD LOSES TO COLUMBIA, 28 TO 22

A powerful Columbia basketball team played Harvard and toppled the Crimson aggregation, 28 to 23.

It was the first defeat suffered by Harvard in six games.



Lew Gordon

Columbia stepped out to an early lead. The two forwards Strom and Lustig, proved more than a match for the Crimson defence.

Captain Wilson was easily the star player and scored six goals from fouls and three from the floor.

Rudolfsky and Maher, Crimson defence men, put up an able and plucky defence against the New York attack. Their splendid teamwork was instrumenta. in keeping the Crimson within scoring distance up to the last minute of play.

Gordon played a good game for Harvard, but the Blue and White defence players were too active and too clever for him.

Boy Swim Meet Feb. 2

The annual Employed Boys' swimming meet will be held in the big tank at the Huntington avenue branch of the Y. M. C. A. on February 2.

TARAMASCHI TO GIVE LEWIS SURPRISE

Fans who attended the wrestling match at the Grand Opera House last Thursday night will be interested to know that Billy Sandow, Ed "Strangler" Lewis's manager, had a contract in which it was stipulated that Sandow would be allowed to coach his man.

Joe Alvarez

It caused quite a little excitement at the time but Sandow insisted on that clause before he would sign for the match.

It is possible that Bowser will insist that he remain away from the ringside in his finish match with Angelo Taramaschi at the Grand on Thursday night. The Italians of Boston haven't seen an Italian wrestle for the world's title in several years and are anxious to see Angelo show at his best.

Should Sandow insist in coaching Lewis it is possible that Taramaschi also will have a seasoned veteran of the mat in his corner to give him signs.

Taramaschi is in wonderful shape for this match. In a statement to the writer last night the Italian said:

"A lot of people think I can't wrestle. I have just changed the minds of a few of the boys at the gymnasium. Now I want to change the public's mind. I am sure that I could beat Joe Alvarez and he gave Lewis the battle of his life last week. They can't accuse me of picking the soft ones that's sure.

"Lewis has the surprise of his life coming to him Thursday night. He claims Caisa would never meet him. Well, I am one Italian wrestler that does not fear him and I'll be in there with something doing from the start to the finish Thursday night."

Joe Alvarez will appear on the card against Alex Ben Ali, the Syrian Tiger. Joe is hot after Stasiak and say he won't leave town till he gets the big Pole and gets him right.

AMERICAN CHAMPS IN FINE FORM

By THOMAS L. CUMMISKEY.

New York, Jan. 23.—To bear one's nation's colors in the Olympiad is, or at least should be, as great a glory as an athlete can know, and this is a dream that has come true for Joe Moore, a youth of 23, of this city.

Joe Moore.

Joe will wear the Red, White and Blue with others of our country's skating team in the ice classics at Chamounix in the French Alps beginning January 25. This lithe, finely conditioned youth is expected to do fine things.

He distinguished himself in tryouts here, as he had in the past few years in international and national competitions, and he has been skating at fine forming practice in the rinks of the Alps.

It doesn't seem so very long ago since Joe was a little tad, scooting around the old St. Nicholas Rink, famous in its day, but for some years now extinct. He first skated around—or rather stumbled around—on a pair of rusty skates that he had picked up in an ash barrel there.

One morning Joe's mother awakened him, and, pointing to an ad for an office boy, told him to go around to the rink and try and land it. He was just a lad, still in school, but he was wasting a lot of time.

His mother's tip, it turned out, was a good one. Joe got the job. If he hadn't, the probabilities are he would not be an internationally famous skater today. The fates, semingly, elected Joe to be a champion.

After working a couple of days at the rink, Joe found an old pair of skates in an ash barrel, and started in to shove his bladed feet over the ice. He got a lot of bumps, brought a lot of bumps to others, as he tried to stay upright on the confined space of the rink.

But it wasn't long before Joe was doing mighty well. Cornelius Fellowes, well-known in the skating world and connected with the rink, took an interest in the boy. Joe seemed to be born to the blades. Fellowes gave him plenty of time to practice. Then Norval Baptie, internationally famous at the time, began to notice Joe as he scooted around, leaving other youngsters behind. Baptie gave Joe his first real pair of skates—a pair of Baptie's own. He also gave him most valuable tips on the game.

Chas. Jewtraw

Joe has won the national skating honors, set world's records, and has twice won the international indoor title. He is now particularly brilliant at the longer distances. His climb has been sensational.

The other members of the United States skating team, embracing Charles Jewtraw, Bill Steinmetz, Harry Haskey, Valentine Bialisa, and Richard "Duke" Donovan, are without exception products of out-of-door surfaces.

This array is, zeyond question, the best obtainable in the United States today. Its chief rivals are the skaters of Norway and Denmark. Our team, however, stands a fine chance of bringing home the most laurels—the world crown.

It has seemed to the writer that the United States hockey team might easily have been better handled. It left these shores without the combination having had many workouts together as sich a high enterprise would warant.

Irving Small

Our team of 1920 was not well handled, from reports of an authoritative nature of the time. It lost to the Falcons of Winnipeg representing Canada, by a 2 to 1 score, in the deciding battle. Our team had beaten Switzerland, 22 to 0, and Czecho-Slovaka, 16 to 0. There was little or no doubt about the superiority of the play of this country and Canada.

Now Canada is represented by a more welded team than we have sent across. Our team is composed of members of the Boston A. A. array, which won the country's amateur title last year, and two other stars, Herbert Drury of Pitsburgh, and Clarence Abel of St. Paul. The Boston players are Captain Justin McCarthy, Irving W. Small, George P. Geran, Willard Rice, Alphonse La Croix, John A. Langley and Frank Sinnott.

SCHOOLBOYS TO PLAY TENNIS—PERHAPS

A brand new plan is now in vogue in our Boston high schools to popularize tennis as a sport. Let's hope their efforts at the racquet game are better than their efforts in other lines of even more popular sport.

SPORTING AMERICAN

CHAMPIONSHIP SCHOOLBOY TILT IN DOUBT

It looks very much as though the yearly scholastic hockey championship that takes place at the Arena will be passed up. The season is well nigh on its second lap yet but three games have been played of a long schedule.

BOSTON COMING BACK TO PROPER PLACE IN BASEBALL

BRAVES READY TO TRADE WITH ST. LOUIS CLUB

By NICK FLATLEY.

Rogers Hornsby

Boston is getting to be the baseball capital of the universe once more. With an American League meeting here next month, and the Braves, even by rumor, being linked up in a deal involving Rogers Hornsby, you can safely say that times have changed.

Said American League meeting is the first that was ever planted in Boston, and although it will be merely a routine affair, it shows that Ban Johnson and the League are firmly resolved to put this village back on the map.

The Braves will not get Hornsby—we doubt if even the Giants can—but the world realizes that the Wigwam owners are seriously in the trade market, and that's a great step forward.

There is no doubt but that some kind of deal will be put through with the Cardinals. Rickey is in the market for a few regular players, and he has more minor league material to fool with and shuffle than any other manager in the business.

The Cards own the Syracuse club in the International League, and the Fort Worth club in the Texas League, so they have plenty of pretty good athletes to work with. They also have strings on two or three smaller circuit outfits, and are really showing the way to the baseball world.

Within a few years all the big clubs will have their subsidiaries—they are being forced to it by the startling prices of the minor league players these last few seasons. A pretty good ball club can be bought for what one promising star costs now, so it's only logical to buy up the clubs and try to develop said stars.

The Cards, of course, want Catcher Mickey O'Neil, but from where we sit, it looks as if the Braves intend to keep that young man. He's a more or less erratic bird, but he can be handled easily enough, and Davey Bancroft is just about the type that can do the job. When Mickey thinks the world is with him, he's just about the best catcher there is.

* * *

It's a cinch that the Tribe will get rid of at least one infielder, and they can do quite a lot of swapping with outfielders. We have a notion that Rickey would be perfectly willing to take young Bob Smith and give something pretty good in return.

Bob Smith

The Cards have been on the verge of winning a pennant for the past three years, but they generally explode when the turn into the stretch is reached. Manager Rickey has his own peculiar ideas of running a club, and the players throughout the league have it that he never can grab a flag as long as he insists on running his pitchers ragged.

Branch doesn't mind in the least working half a dozen regulars in any one ball game and he goes in for more intensive training than any college football team. F'rinstance, his athletes played something like thirty-two ball games before they opened the regular campaign last Spring. This sort of thing naturally takes the fine edge off the boys, and not a few who have been brought all the way up in the Rickey school are somewhat dissatisfied.

The Cards want to dispose of big Jeff Pfeffer, but that chap doesn't appeal particularly to many managers. He hasn't been too fussy about training rules and things with the St. Louis outfit, though, of course, he might be entirely different with a new boss.

The Western owners did think that John McGraw would buy him, especially after the Giant pitchers went to smash in the series, but the cagey Jawn has evidently determined to manufacture a new staff of his own. He's about discouraged trying to rebuild run-down models.

The Giants have more than twenty pitchers on the list for the Spring excursion, and Mac and his staff of instructors should be able to dig out two or three good ones from that batch.

Mickey Lalonge Will Coach

Micky Lalonge, the veteran catcher of major and minor leagues, has been engaged as coach of pitchers of the Cornell baseball squad.

BASKETBALL IS NORTH SHORE RAGE

By FRED C. LANE.

The biggest boom that basketball has received in many moons is in progress in the North Shore League. To judge from the manner in which they have had the A. S. O. sign at Lynn Classical, English, Salem, Marblehead and Swampscott, which is coached by Charley Cuddy, one must believe that the court game overshadows track as a sport in that section of the world.

Charley Cuddy

Strange as it may seem Lynn track teams have been in the forefront for four years, yet the populace is more eager for a basketball game in which one of the two school teams competes for than any dual meet arranged with an out-of-town school.

In Marblehead, Swampscott, Salem and Gloucester, basketball is the big Winter sport. Lack of sufficient floor space to develop track candidates is one reason for the popularity of the basket sport.

As every game that Lynn Classical has played at home the gym has been packed to capacity. This has been true also of the other North Shore League towns all Winter. Close followers of sport in that section predict that basketball will be, next to football, the most popular sport.

Basketball is proving a better financial medium than baseball or track. This is one reason why it is encouraged. On Saturday night Lynn Classical will meet Haverhill High in Lynn. Yet at this early date tickets are hard to get.

The school spirit, as a result of the exciting games, has increased tenfold. There was a time when the money at these games came from outsiders, not students. Conditions are changed for it is mighty difficult for an outsider to gain admission to the gym nowadays as the students buy most of the tickets.

The schoolboys have week of daily track meets.

The Huntington School track team, with such stars as Bill Dooley, Eric Hanson, Edmund Harris, Howard Burns and Carney, is capable of coping with the strongest.

Testing the relative strength of Newton and Medford seems to be the lot of Huntington School's track team. On Friday, Newton will engage Huntington in a dual meet at Newton.

Many will remember the hectic performance that the athletes of both Newton and Medford put on at last year's indoor State meet. Only a brilliant effort by Orpen in the 100-yard dash, by which he finished third, did Medford carry off the honors and then only over Newton by a fraction of a point.

The boys of English High and Latin will take part in a triangular meet on the outdoor track of the Stadium on Saturday with the Harvard freshman as the third party in the affair. This is the third year that such a meet has been scheduled.

My Favorite Punch

By MICKEY WALKER

Herewith is the second of a series of articles prepared especially for the American in which boxing champions describe their favorite punch and how to use it.

A left hook to the body—that is the kind of punch which I can use with more damage to my opponent than any other.

Mickey Walker

It is a mighty tough thing for any fighter to get out of the way of a left hand sweep. I know it, because I have tried it myself. So, learning from my own experience which blow is the most difficult to avoid, I began practicing up on just such a blow, to use against my rivals.

When I have a chance to hit a man with either hand to the body or to the chin, my preference is to shoot a left hand to the body. My next choice is a left to the chin. The third choice, a right to the chin and fourth, a right to the body.

I have noted in my ring lifetime, that although I have scored more knockouts with right hand punches than I have with the left, that it was the left hand which really won the victory for me. The left hook started the other fellow on his way down, and I usually could use the right hand to whip across on him to end the entertainment for that evening.

ALBERT GEIGER, JR., IS HOST TO SCRIBES

Albert Geiger, Jr., chairman of the B. A. A. athletic committee, tended the Boston newspaper sport writers a dinner at the B. A. A.

It was one of the best affairs ever held by the Back Bay organization. The host toasted everybody in the party. None of the scribes was called on to speak. They were tickled over that.

Jack Sheehan was called on for a dance, and the veteran did his stuff in unusually clever style. A great time was had by all.

A concert was given by the Dartmouth Glee Club.

CHARLEY BAXTER IS WINNER OVER POLO

Charley Baxter of Pawtucket won the decision over Eddie Polo of Waterville, Me., in a ten-round bout at the Casino A. C., Lynn. Baxter won all the way, and took seven of the ten rounds.

In the other bouts, Bob Lawrie of Edinburgh won in eight rounds from Leo Gregory of Medford. George Cordes of Peabody beat Willy Rose of Quebec in six rounds, and Jack Fitzpatrick of Boston defeated Mickey Roberts of New York in another six-round bout.

SCHAEFER HAS BIG LEAD ON HOPPE

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Young Jake Schaefer defeated champion Willie Hoppe, 500 to 369, in the first block of their 1,500-point match for the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship.

In the second inning Schaefer had the balls together on the second shot. He kept them so for 13 points. On his 14th shot the two white balls were frozen at one side at the foot of the table with the red ball on the opposite side, but he scored with a perfect three-cushion shot.

Willie Hoppe

The balls spread on his 21st, but he soon had them back and, kept them at the foot of the table, and ran 92. He missed on a cross table one-cushion bank.

Hoppe on his second turn at the table found the balls in good position along the left rail, but was unable to get them together. He ran 17, all but two of which were open table shots and missed on a centre table three-cushion.

In the fifth, Hoppe after four beautiful three-cushion shots, had the balls together. He ran 18 and then missed on a short draw masse.

In the eighth inning the challenger, by brilliant draws, masses and drives, rapidly ran 12 at which point he had the ivories nestled in balk back at the foot of the table. With masterly control he soon tallied 73 more or a total of 85 for the inning. He missed on a one-cushion shot.

Hoppe ran 70 before the balls moved away from the foot of the table.

At 71 they strung along the rail, but after two more shots he had them together at the head of the table. He continued to score and was cheered when at 145 he had tied Schaefer's total.

At 177 the balls spread. He made three points more but missed on the 181st. The score at the end of the eighth inning was Schaefer 185, Hoppe 220.

Jake started the tenth with a marvelous three-cushion shot. He appeared to get bad breaks, and only his extraordinary open table work saved him. At 14 he succeeded in gathering the ivories. They were at the head of the table, and with absolute confidence, his touch and control nearly perfect, he ran 160.

His judgment of speed was not so good and he continued to get line-ups. Up to that point he had to shoot ten masses and nine bank shots.

On his 161st shot his ball was about frozen to one object ball near the left rail. The red ball was on the other side of the table near the head. Jake made a perfect masse and sent his ball to the head cushion and then directly to the red ball. He ran nine more for a total of 170, then missed a one-cushion draw.

Hoppe made 27, missing a cushion first shot.

The challenger found the balls spread in the twelfth, but by superb open table play, grouped them after seven shots. With apparent ease and confidence he ran 62 more.

LENINE, SOVIET LEADER, DIES OF SHOCK

where the Soviet Congress was in session.

CELEBRATION HALTED.

The delegates had assembled to celebrate the anniversary of the first revolutionary outbreak in Petrograd. Services were planned in honor of fallen "comrades."

Kamenev, Zinoviev and Stalin, the "Triumvirate," appeared upon the stage with tears streaming down their faces. Immediately the audience knew some great tragedy had befallen the nation.

Kalenin advanced to the front of the stage and in broken, halting sentences started to speak.

"Comrades," he cried, trying to make his voice strong but unsuccessfully, "Our Commander Ilyitch is no longer with us.

The speaker paused while the audience—men and women—leaned forward in their seats. He resumed:

MIGHTY WAIL AT THEATRE.

Kalenin apparently had more in mind to say, but could not speak. He bowed slightly and sat down.

The audience sat thunderstruck for a moment. Then a mighty wail went up. Men groaned in their grief, women sobbed. Some of the women delegates fainted.

In the streets military bands marched slowly back and forth, playing funeral dirges.

The body will be brought to Moscow tomorrow. It was embalmed today. It will rest in state for several days before interment.

As soon as news of Lenine's death was circulated here, flags were placed at half staff on government buildings and many private houses.

The Soviet Cabinet conferred upon plans for the funeral, which will be held Saturday. The greatest public demonstration of sorrow Russia has ever known in her history is expected.

GRAVE BESIDE JOHN REED.

The body will be brought here, according to present plans, to rest in state at the Kremlin before it is interred in Red square, where the body of John Reed, American writer and Socialist, lies buried.

Lenine was the real power behind the Moscow government. His powers were even more dictatorial than those of the autocratic Czars who ruled before he came into authority as head of the Russian government in November, 1917.

TWO LEADERS REMOVED.

Lenine's death came at a time when his colleague, Leon Trotzky, as spectacular a revolutionary figure as himself, was ill. Disease and death thus remove from the arena two of the most active figures that set the Red flag flying over Russia.

Specialists had been summoned from Germany from time to time. They succeeded in prolonging Lenine's life but could not save it. During most of the time he was ill he lived in a modest villa on his country estate outside of Moscow attended daily by his wife.

Members of the People's Council of Commissaries (the government of the Federal Socialist Soviets) visited him at intervals for council. Sick or well, Lenine remained the idol of the Russian Communists.

Lenine was married, but had no family. He was the author of many books upon Communism and Socialism.

Many attempts were made upon Lenine's life, but he escaped them all to die a natural death, peacefully in bed.

Dora Kaplan, a woman Socialist, shot Lenine and he had a narrow escape from death. The bullet was not removed until many months later, and Lenine regarded it as a good omen while he carried it.

10,000 Arrests Made in Moscow in Week

Helsingfors, Jan. 22.—Ten thousand persons have been arrested or deported at Moscow in the past week, according to information received here today.

It was explained that the arrests were due to the moral "clean up," but they have caused considerable anxiety owing to the quarrel between Trotzky and the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party.

Lenine Called Great Leader of Century

Nikola Lenine, lawyer pamphleteer and finally dictator of all Russia, was the organizer and chief exponent of the movement which became known as Bolshevism, and which he characterized as "the great experiment; the dictatorship of the Proletariat."

Lenine's real name was Vladimir Illitch Ulianoff. He was born April 24, 1870, in Simbirsk of a bourgeois family, with a pronounced Tartar strain. His father was a responsible master at a communal school at Simbirsk. He was well known among the school teachers of his district. Lenine himself attended the high school at Simbirsk, and by a strange coincidence his principal was the father of Alexander Kerensky, whom Lenine afterward overthrew to become Premier of Russia.

BROTHER AN ASSASSIN.

When Lenine was seventeen his eldest brother, Alexander Ulianoff was hanged for an attempt upon the life of Czar Alexander III., which was organized by a terroristic organization of which he was a member.

Lenine himself never was a member of any terroristic organization, but a desire to avenge his brother's death is said to have ruled his life.

He spent most of his time in revolutionary propaganda among the Petrograd workmen rather than at his studies. He was arrested, served a long term of imprisonment and then was deported to Siberia.

While in Siberia he adopted as his pen name "Nikola Lenine," by which he rose to world notoriety.

WANTED WAR OF CLASSES.

When the World War began he was at Cracow, in Austrian Galicia. The Austrians expelled him and he went again to Switzerland.

When the Czar was overthrown, early in 1917, Lenine returned to Russia. He made his first appearance at the All-Russian Congress of Soviets, urging the workers to seize the power and to do away with the Kerensky government.

From July, 1917, until Lenine returned suddenly to Petrograd to become almost overnight the Dictator of Russia, he was in hiding. The search became too hot for him and he fled to Finland.

On November 6, 1917, Lenine returned to Petrograd.

REBUILDING OF RUSSIA.

In 1921, when the Soviet government had swept aside all military opposition, and when Russia was practically intact in communist hands, except for Poland, Finland and the Baltic provinces, which broke off and formed independent republics, Lenine turned his hands to the task of building up the Russia the revolution had destroyed. To achieve this reconstruction, Lenine, with the daring that characterized all of his major plans, began what he called a strategic retreat from Communism.

He proposed at least a partial re-establishment of capitalistic principles; a reversion to free trade; the imposition of taxes on land; abolishment of free transportation, and the acceptance of outside aid for the millions of starving Russians.

It was the great peasant class and its refusal to accept the principles of Communism, coupled with the destructive drought and resultant famine of 1921, that finally brought about the capitulation.

In the Spring of 1922 Lenine's health began to crack under the strain. He became a victim of insomnia, and later on developed serious nervous and gastric disorders.

CLOUD LIFTED FROM ACTRESS' NAME

LUELLA GEAR

DROPS HER SUIT AGAINST MATE AS "UNFAIR"

Mrs. Ann Ridges Sorry She Sued Actor-Husband and Named Luella Gear

New York, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Ann Ridges today was to withdraw her separation suit in which she named Luella Gear, Broadway actress. She gave as her reason that she believed she had done an injury to her husband as an artist. Mrs. Ridges added:

"Unwittingly, by filing suit papers I all but ruined my husband's career.

Mrs. Ann Ridges

"He is an exceptionally excellent actor. It has taken him many years to build up what it took an unfortunate act of circumstances only a few hours to tear down.

"The thing that moves me today is the same thing that moves all women everywhere to do many things to sacrifice everything or to suffer any sort of humiliation. It is my love for Stanley, strange as it may sound now that I brought suit, that makes me anxious to make reparation.

PRAISES HUSBAND.

"I was led perhaps by jealousies and misunderstands of incidents to think that he was wrong in his attitude to me. Then I learned how he had suffered over this suit. Of course, I hope that I do not appear ridiculous in this step that I have decided to take, but even I were, I cannot permit this man, who is, and who cannot be otherwise, than one of the most charming and generous men in the world to suffer. He would not knowingly hurt any one. That he should be hurt and hurt to the point where his career is endangered is the sad part of it."

Mrs. Ridges personally notified her husband, Stanley Ridges, actor, of her intention. Ridges said he had been amazed when he read in the newspapers that he had been sued.

FITCHBURG CHUMS BURIED TOGETHER

Fitchburg, Jan. 22.—Pals in life and pals in death, Arthur Goguen and Andrew Guertin, both of Fitchburg, and both eleven years old, were inseparable companions for the last few years. They lived in adjoining houses on Oakhill road, Fitchburg, and attended St. Joseph's School together. When Andrew got into a fight Arthur was always there to fight beside him. They likewise shared their treasures.

[illegible]

Over the week end the boys were skating on Roberge Pond on the outskirts of Fitchburg. The ice was thin. Both went through and were drowned. When the pond was dragged the little bodies were found side by side.

WOMAN OF MYSTERY IS IDENTIFIED

"Clara Ross," Held for Passing Bad Checks, Is Mrs. DuBois of Fall River

Despite her determined silence about her past, "Clara Ross," arrested with two young girls who said they were her pupils in a bogus check game, was identified today as Mrs. Annie Du Bois of Fall River.

Mrs. Du Bois, known here both as Clara and Mrs. Blanche Ross, is in Charles Street Jail in default of bail and will be arraigned tomorrow in Municipal Court.

JAPAN BUYING UP ALIEN LEASEHOLDS

Tokio, Jan. 22 (AP).—Early extinction of Yokohama as a foreign settlement is heralded by the announced policy of the Japanese government to buy up all foreign perpetual leaseholds in that city at "equitable prices."

The new policy has been given added impetus by the return of two plots of land in Yokohama formerly held by the United States and used as sites for a naval hospital and an army quartermaster's [illegible] depot. A perpetual leasehold is the only way in which foreigners can hold land in Japan.

COOLIDGE AGAINST HGH SURTAX RATE

Washington, Jan. 22.—Indications were given at the White House today that President Coolidge would regard any surtax rate above 25 per cent, as a change in the fundamental principle of the Mellon tax bill and is a basis for veto of any such bill.

Tax revision was discussed at the Cabinet meeting. It was made plain that Mr. Coolidge stood squarely behind the Mellon plan in its fundamental principles and would agree only to amendments designed to perfect it.

Tired Wife and Children Back in Fitchburg After Vainly Seeking Job in Films

Fitchburg, Jan. 22.—[illegible] and tired from tramping around to the various motion picture companies in New York and New Jersey in search of work for herself and her six children who range in age from two years old to seventeen, Mrs. Louise Rassetti of 316 Water street, returned to her home with the family strung out behind her, and was greeted with open arms by her husband, Premo Rassetti.

For years Mrs. Tasett corresponded with movie "schools." She and the children took correspondence courses in movie acting. Her husband laughed tolerantly.

Last week she and the six children disappeared.

The husband found [illegible] saying they had gone to New York to go into the moving pictures. The police were notified, but could not locate her.

Then the missing ones reappeared as mysteriously as they had gone and the wife begged for forgiveness, which was granted.

HAD QUARREL OVER THEIR NEW HOME

Bridegroom Returns Wedding Ring, Says No Reconciliation Is Possible

Providence, Jan. 22.—The bride was ready, the priest was waiting and the guests were assembled for the marriage of Gertrude M. Marsh and Arnold R. Taylor of Riverside, when the bridegroom disrupted the ceremony by failing to appear at the appointed hour.

The couple are prominent among the younger set in Riverside and had been sweethearts for nearly four years. They were to have been married by the Rev. J. E. Hughes in the parish house of St. Brendan's Church.

The disappointed bride-to-be is twenty-one years old and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer B. Marsh of No. 94 Middle street. Tyler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tyler of No. 32 River street. He is twenty-two.

"BRIDE" PROSTRATED.

Both Miss Marsh and Father Hughes refused to believe, up to the last moment that Tyler would fail to show up, although on the eve of the wedding day he notified both that "everything was off."

The girl is in a highly nervous condition as a result of the shock of her disappointment and has gone to Springfield, Mass., for rest and quiet.

When Tyler proposed a few weeks ago, Miss Marsh consented to a marriage by Father Hughes and just before the wedding day she pooled her money with that of Tyler to furnish their love nest and provide a honeymoon fund.

POOLED SAVINGS.

Tyler on his return to Providence admitted his bride-to-be gave him [illegible] savings with which to help purchase furniture, the wedding ring and pay for the trip, and said he intended to return what was left of her share of the fund, but had not yet done so. He said he returned the wedding ring bought by the girl, but that she retained a valuable diamond engagement ring which he is still paying for.

He said he will return the marriage license to Town Clerk William E. Smyth of East Providence and that there will be no reconciliation.

COUPLE QUARRELLED.

[illegible] disagreement over where they [illegible] live when their honeymoon [illegible] Springfield was over caused a [illegible] which ended, according to [illegible] Marsh, by Tyler's declaring [illegible] would live with his mother [illegible] as she lives.

[illegible] the day before the wedding, Tyler went to the Marsh home, where Gertrude was ill in bed, delivered a valise containing clothes she had left at his house, tossed the [illegible] ring on the table and [illegible] out.

GRAND JURY PROBES MAIL ORDER RUM PLOT

Philadelphia, Jan. 22.—A special federal grand jury was empanelled today on orders from Washington to investigate what is declared to be a mail order bootlegging scheme of nation-wide scope. Ex-Diplomat Charges Divorced Wife's Absence From Maine Violates Decree

Portland, Me., Jan. 22.—Neils Gron of New York renewed his fight for the custody of his [illegible] year old son, N[illegible] [illegible] he presented [illegible] in the Supreme Court.

He declared [illegible] first wife, Mrs. [illegible] Stone, from whom he was divorced in December, 1922, has been absent from Maine, with her son, for more than four months.

This violates and vitiates the decree, he [illegible] which provided that Mrs. Gron should not be absent from the State for more than [illegible] months of any year.

The decree stipulated that should Mrs. Stone be absent for more than three months the custody of the boy would be divided between the parents, as though no decree had been made. The petition was held under consideration by the court.

"Shut up," Maggie said gently.

That is as gentle as she usually gets. But when Miss Davies as Pat confessed that she was not a lad, after all, but a girl, and when Delavan confessed his love for her, Maggie's manner softened and she turned to Jiggs saying:

"Isn't it a wonderful picture, darling? It takes me back to our own courting days. I feel like leaning against your shoulder and crying."

Read How Mrs. Walsh Was Helped by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mannington, W. Virginia.—"I took the Vegetable Compound when having the turn of life. I had been sick for seven years. I would get a little better, then I broke down again. It would be hard for me to describe how I was, for I was a perfect wreck. I suffered with a pain in my left side, then I would have numb spells, and I would think I couldn't live. I would have hot flashes, then would come weak spells. I was so weak I would think I couldn't ever get a meal ready. My work was a burden to me. I was not able to do my housework half of the time. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has given me strength and health. The hot flashes left me and I got better of the numb spells. That summer I could do my housework and worked in the garden a good bit. I tell all sick women what your wonderful medicine did for me, and will always recommend it. I am known to all my neighbors, and you can publish this statement because it is true."—Mrs. JOHN W. WALSH, R. No. 1, Box 36, Mannington, West Virginia.

"Birds of Disaster" Appear for First Time Since War

Danzig, Jan. 22.—Old inhabitants of the Baltic States are shaking their heads doubtfully over the appearance of the [illegible] Winter thrush, known among the superstitious as the "bird of disaster." It has not been seen in these regions since the Winter of 1913-14.

Residents of East Prussia and other parts of the Baltic contend that it is a matter of historical record that the birds were harbingers in the Winter of 1812, preceding Napoleon's Russian campaign, and that their appearance here at intervals of years has invariably been followed by famine, pestilence or war before the year was out. Scientists say the birds came South to escape the severe Winter in the North.

Lieutenant Samuel Ellis of the Twenty-first Police District was given his choice of resigning or facing suspension pending a further investigation. He chose the former and his resignation was accepted. Additional changes in the department probably would be made.

General Butler declared again today there would be no letup in his drive against vice and crime until he had succeeded in making the city "as clean as a hound's tooth."

"We have the crooks on the run," he declared, "and we are going to keep them running too."

LAUDER HERE WITH BEVY OF NEW SONGS

Doughty Little Scotchman Delights Huge Audience at Opera House

Every year Sir Harry Lauder makes [illegible] farewell [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] came to the Boston Opera House last night to the delight of a capacity audience.

A grateful British King made plain Harry Lauder a knight for his services during the war. He was dubbed "Sir" Harry, not made a peer, but he is a peer without equal in his own particular form of entertainment. With his entertainment too, the doughty little Scotsman preaches sound philosophy and last night, in his impromptu before curtain address, which the audience insisted on, he preached more common horse sense and more of the love of God and man than is delivered from many pulpits on Sunday mornings.

SINGS 11 SONGS.

Harry Lauder has not changed one bit since his first visit. He does not look a day older and he still retains that happy knack of getting his audience with him the minute he comes on the stage with a broad grin on his countenance. Altogether the comedian gave eleven songs, four of them old favorites, the others brand new to Boston.

In turn he portrayed a dashing young Scotchman in "I Know a Lassie Out in Ohio"; a baker, in "Doughie the Baker"; a sailor, in "There is Someone Waiting for Me," and an old highlander, in "When I was Twenty-one."

His other numbers were, "Roamin' in the Gloamin,'" "Dixie Girls Are Good Enough for Me," "Hame o' Mine," "Love Makes the World a Merry-go-round," "I Like My Old Home Town," and "We Hoose Amang the Heather."

EXPANSIVE SMILE.

The expressive walk, the broad expansive smile, the exaggerated Scot[illegible] costume, and, above all, the personality of the man himself, made each number a complete hit. Then sandwiched in between each song was that little bit of philosophy which showed his keen perception of human nature and his love of his fellow man. "I would sooner build friendships than battleships," he told his friends in the audience and he told it in a simple straightforward manner that showed he meant what he said.

A well balanced bill supports the star. Miss Marian Valliance is a singer of no mean ability and her rendition of "Caller Herrin'" and "Comin' Thru' th' Rye" was particularly pleasing. Bigger things than the vaudeville stage will soon be claiming this young miss. La Bernicia is a particularly graceful dancer, and Gintaro, Olga Morselli and the Gaudsmith Brothers added to a pleasing program.

Week's Events

LOEW'S STATE—Corinne Griffith in the film "The Common Law," and a condensed version of the musical play, "The Belle of New York," are features of this week's bill.

"The Belle of New York" is sung and dance in admirable fashion by sixty members of the State Theatre Free School of Opera, under Mme. Doree's direction.

ORPHEUM — The photoplay, "Pleasure Mad"; vaudeville and short releases are all-week attractions. The film is a version of the novel, "Valley of Content," a modern story of divorce, jazz and other timely topics.

FENWAY—"The Yankee Consul," the new Douglas MacLean picture, is a really amusing comedy—one of the most interesting and genuinely funny photoplays shown here for a long time.

OLYMPIA—Richard Barthelmess in "The Fighting Blade" is this week's film feature. Short subjects and vaudeville are other attractions.

In the thrilling screen production Mr. Barthelmess plays the role of a young gallant who defies a king and has to defend his own Quixotic ideals. He fights bravely, winning against overwhelming odds in many battles with steel and with wits.

SCOLLAY SQUARE — Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle in the film, "Black Oxen"; short releases and vaudeville are this week's offerings.

CODMAN SQUARE—A screen version of "Lucretia Lombard," a novel by Kathleen Norris, and Richard Talmadge in the romance "Let's Go," will be picture offerings until Thursday.

CAPITOL—In the pictured version of Gertrude Atherton's novel, "Black Oxen," the leading roles have been assigned to Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle.

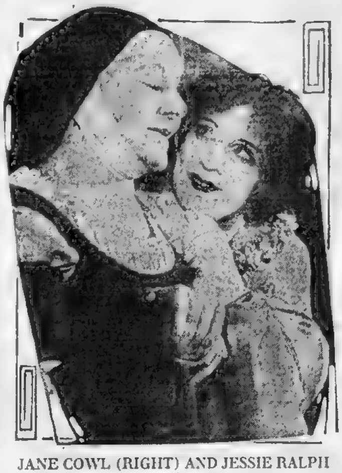
CENTRAL SQUARE—Colleen Moore in "Flaming Youth," a romance of modern society, other photoplays and fine vaudeville acts make up the well varied program this week.

STRAND—Today and tomorrow the picture program will include Pola Negri in the new story, "The Spanish Dancer," and William Russell as star in "When Odds Are Even." There will be a new bill beginning Thursday.

Iron Jack Loses

Washington, Jan. 22.—The Supreme Court declined to permit former Governor John C. Walton of Oklahoma to bring up for review direct from the Legislature the impeachment proceedings which resulted in his removal from office.

Holds Audience Spellbound by Impersonation of Role of Juliet



JANE COWL (RIGHT) AND JESSIE RALPH

Every year or two produces a man of letters or a patron of the arts who arises to announce that Shakespeare was a literary hack—that the works of the Bard of Avon bore the average person stiff, and that Shakespearean drama is tolerated simply because it has been fashionable so many centuries.

Then—every generation the stage produces an artist who almost in one breath undoes the work of the captious critics.

WORK OF AN ARTIST.

Such an artist is Jane Cowl.

Her rendition of Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet," at the Selwyn Theatre, last evening, literally held an audience spellbound. Here was the work of an artist without a flaw, and it would be surprising indeed if the succeeding performances this week do not see many of last evening's audience in attendance.

When Miss Cowl took up Shakespearean roles, dramatic critics everywhere were loud in their declaration that it was a case of histrionic ability being turned into the wrong channels. No one in last evening's audience could have been convinced that her remaining apart from the role of Juliet would have been less than a tragedy for the [illegible] of the mask and wig.

Time after time Miss Cowl was called to the curtain by the plaudits of her enthralled auditors and finally when the applause remained insistent, the star gave a brief word from the stage, incidentally revealing the fact that she is a native Bostonian.

MAKES CURTAIN SPEECH.

Miss Cowl was visibly affected by the warmth of the appreciation shown her and the supporting company.

"I—I just want to say that I was born in Boston—although I left here when I was three. I am playing Juliet, here——" and she could say no more. Strangely, the audience sat silent when Miss Cowl had finished. She was back home, again, among her people and they knew.

To give all the credit for last evening's success to Miss Cowl would be unfair. Dennis King as Mercutio, Robert Ayrton as Friar Laurence, Rollo Peters as Romeo—all were of a high order and the interpretation of their parts added materially to the success of Miss Cowl.

There may have been stars in the past [illegible] who were equal to Miss Cowl in the role of Juliet. It is a safe assertion to say that none of them excelled her.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

"The South is moulting her feathers for an epoch of prosperity now new even to the New South."

So declared C. Lee Cook of Louisville, one of the most remarkable men in America, who is now on a visit to New York. Most of us have found it difficult enough to make headway in the world with the possession of [illegible]. This man [illegible] has never been [illegible] life, and [illegible] an extraordinary [illegible] vehicle [illegible] by himself, has built [illegible] large and successful engineering and manufacturing business and has won distinction as a scholar, an orator, a painter, an authority on ancient and modern history, [illegible] law, etc. I once wrote a magazine article about his career [illegible] recall, he received [illegible] letters, mostly [illegible] on his success [illegible] such heavy odds.

"These potent forces are turning the pilgrimage of the negro back to his Southern home.

"Furthermore [illegible] South is holding not only its own in modern [illegible] state power [illegible] the case of North Carolina, Georgia and Florida is setting an example [illegible] new highway construction which will draw [illegible] attention to the resources of the South on the part of thousands of investors.

"Finally the South has been less affected by revolutionary notions of governments than any other part of America. The reason is that most of the Southern representative people are still the children of Colonial and first Governmental stock, and so are strongly and conservatively patriotic."

REPLIES TO INVESTORS

SIGN NAME AND ADDRESS.

To Mrs. B. R.—I cannot reply to your inquiry unless you sign your address as well as your name. This is expected of every inquirer, as we make replies direct by mail and print only those which are considered of general interest. Please repeat your inquiry in conformity with this rule.

ADVISED TO HOLD.

To H. S. R.—General Electric "special" stock has a par value of $10. It is practically a preferred issue, and is ahead of the company's common stock. It pays dividends at the rate of 60 per share per annum, payable 15 cents a share quarterly, and is one of the safest and in most ways one of the most attractive investments for a small amount that we know of.

We should advise you to hold your Anaconda Copper, United Shoe Machinery, Alloy Steel as investments, and would advise you to hold your Pierce-Arrow, your North Butte, your National Leather, U. S. Food Products and La Salle Copper as speculations. [illegible] is a "good buy" in our opinion.

REPLOGLE.

To L. L.—Replogle Steel is quoted, as we write, for about one-third the high point reached in 1923, which was 31¾. In our opinion, this stock is now and always has been a risky speculation of poor quality. It does not necessarily follow, however, that a sale around its present low level is indicated as the thing to do. That you must decide for yourself.

CENTRAL MAINE POWER

To J. W. M.—Central Maine Power Company was incorporated back in 1905 and name changed to present title in 1910. It has outstanding $2,500,000 common stock, $660,500 6 per cent preferred and $5,902,200 7 per cent. preferred. An initial dividend of 1 per cent. was paid on the common stock November 1, 1919, 1 per cent. each on May 1 and November 1, 1920, 1921 and 1922.

From 1912 to 1922, inclusive, the company reported very satisfactory annual surplus. In 1923, the common stock earned $4.40 a share. A financial statement for the 1923 year has not been made public as we write.

Andre Lefaivre, chairman of Montreal committee of L. R. Steel Protective Trust, told Canadian stockholders satisfactory response had been made to appeal for funds necessary to take business out of hands of receiver; that the business would shortly be reorganized, probably under name of Steel Consolidated Company, Ltd., and that the reorganized company is likely to continue to operate the 20 stores still in operation in Canada and United States.

STELLA DALLAS ❧ By Olive Higgins Prouty

New and Intensely Interesting Serial of a Marriage of an Educated Man to an Untutored Woman

HOW THE STORY STARTED

Stella Dallas and her husband, Stephen, do not live together. They have a daughter, thirteen years old, named Laurel, who stays most of the year with the mother. They visit a Summer hotel in New England, where the other guests look askance at the painted, overdressed elder woman. The time has come for Laurel to visit her father in New York. He meets her at the station and takes her to a hotel. She goes to visit Mrs. Morrison. The story now goes back to the marriage of Stephen and Stella at Milhampton. Stella starts a flirtation with Alfred Munn. The leading women of the town begin to drop her. Stephen, deciding he can never go back to her, starts a divorce suit. The story then goes back to Mrs. Morrison's marriage to her aged millionaire suitor. The latter dies and Stephen confesses his love to the widow. Stella and Laurel get in with a society set at a Summer hotel and Laurel goes canoeing with Richard Grosvenor.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

AND when he is there he's so silent and forbidding that I wish he were away so I could make up a dream—Jim like what he used to be when he still cared for me.

Down in the bottom of my heart I've begun to feel that Jim doesn't care for me. I won't acknowledge that he is never going to love me again, for that would seem like the end of everything.

Ann Lisle

As Saturday approached I found myself wondering, in a combination of terror and anticipation, what our week-end at Dreamwold would bring forth. When Virginia issued her royal mandate of an invitation I resented it, for I knew that she intended the conference to break off relations between Jim and me. She thinks he ought to have his freedom and means to work to that end. I've been wild with rage and sorrow at her attitude, but realize it must be faced. I scarcely see how it can make bad matters much worse, for I may as well know the truth as guess it.

I was working late at my desk on Friday night. As usual, there was a conference at Betty's in the evening, but I had declined to make engagements to dine with my fellow workers. I needed the time to clear away some matters before going to Dreamwold. I had fallen back on my old sandwich-and-coffee meal and was munching as I worked when the phone sounded a peremptory summons.

"Anne, is that you?" demanded Jim's voice.

My heart missed a beat as I huskily told him it was I.

"I've just had Jeanie on the wire," Jim said curtly. "I've told her I won't be able to make it tomorrow."

"Then of course I won't go," I fumbled, wondering if this was a reprieve or a new sentence.

"Oh, you might as well," said Jim carelessly. "I'll be out of town anyway. Fact, I'm leaving now. I'd not say anything to Virginia about you. Good-by."

HOW VITAL NERVE FORCE WINS THE JOYS OF LIFE

Wincarnis Keeps Our Bodies Filled With Energy and Rekindles the Fires of Strength

A boy wakes and hustles out of bed. He has had enough of bed; he's got to get out in the world and see what's going on—and make something go on. His long, sweet sleep has renewed him, restored his vital energy. The only way to keep him in bed is to tie him there.

That boy is on the run when he hits the floor. It takes the whole family to hold him long enough to tie his shoes. That boy has what many men and women lose when they ought still to be young: the vital force and energy that makes a man a real man, a woman a real woman with all the charm of full physical vigor.

That boy has all of his vital nerve force. It has not been impaired by illness, overwork, worry or mental strain—so he is filled with energy that will not be denied. In some men and women the vitality of youth lasts all their lives. They do not know what it means to have weak or shattered nerves, to have under nourished bodies, to lack strength and purpose.

Such men and women are everlastingly joyous. In work or play, business or pleasure they succeed because of the vital force that is in them.

When our systems no longer respond to Nature's strength building processes we must look to our nerves if we wish to restore ourselves. Our nerves are the positive forces of our lives. We must nourish our nerves, feed them the elements they require. If we suffer from general physical weakness, poor appetite, impoverished blood and nervous depression; if we are too thin, pale, anaemic looking we should begin at once to rekindle the fires of strength.

Such men and women ought to go to their druggist's without delay and begin the home treatment of Wincarnis, the nerve restorative and blood builder. Wincarnis nourishes the nerve system. In twelve days see the improvement this home treatment brings. Wincarnis treatment costs less than ten cents a day. You will no longer worry over failing strength and exhausted nerves.

Great men never exceed their authority.

It is easier to [illegible] more authority at the hands of others than it is to relinquish what you have selfishly [illegible]

This is not a "one man" country. Every [illegible] his or her [illegible] and government [illegible] you learn it the smoother your path is going to [illegible]

YOU NEVER CAN TELL

The ring [illegible] the bell which is annoying you so much at the moment may mean that a messenger stands without bearing a telegram notifying you that your uncle in the Klondike has just expired, naming you as sole beneficiary in a will leaving $1,000,000.

The little messenger girl who will take your gift from the exclusive millinery store on the avenue to your high-brow flame may bloom into a [illegible] ful damsel and be your [illegible]

The banana peel you eye so differently may hide a black pearl of inestimable value.

The lady across the aisle from you who appears so beautifully gowned and so happy to gaze upon may be hiding a terrible agony, having just been divorced by her wealthy hubby without alimony.

The newsboy who sells you the morning paper each day may be the runaway son of a duke who did not like his beautiful stepmother.

The life insurance you are passing up today may be the salvation of your widow.

OPERATORS JAM BROADCAST BY HOLDING KEY

One Offender Breaks Up Programs for a Continuous Period of Six Minutes

With all shore stations co-operating in the attempt to cut out code interference with broadcasting, last night was relatively quiet.

There still remain two chief causes of interference. One is the frequent testing by operators who cannot be identified, and the other is ship operators, mostly foreign, sending to other ships.

Last night one operator accounted for six minutes of serious interference with broadcasting by his trick of holding the key down almost continuously.

INTERFERENCE LOG FOR JANUARY 21.

8:00 p. m.—On watch. Practically no static. Conditions peculiar, in that Montreal comes in like a local station, whereas stations from the West, which usually are good, seem to be very fuzzy.

8:10—Quiet.

8:20—Quiet.

8:30—Quiet.

8:34—Theatrical program very clear from WNAC.

8:40—Quiet.

8:47—KDKA coming through fairly strong.

8:50—Quiet.

8:53—KDDK, American steamship Carlton, U. S. Shipping Board, Independent Wireless Telegraph Company, sends government message to NAU, U. S. Naval Radio station at San Juan, Porto Rico, on 450 meters.

8:54—WKI, American steamship, calling WHA (shore station listed as University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.)

8:59—KDDK finishes to NAU.

9:10—Quiet.

9:20—Quiet.

9:21—Someone testing, holding key down.

9:27—Tester finishes, after holding key down almost continuously. Six minutes of broadcast reception between 450 to 470 meters needlessly spoiled.

9:30—Quiet.

9:40—JED, Japanese steamship "Egypt Maru" sending to JNW, Japanese steamship "Norway Maru." These operators are using the Japanese code, so can't tell what they are talking about. The Japs have a real advantage, in the use of this code, as it is known by few except Japanese operators.

9:45—JED finishes to JNW.

9:50—Quiet.

9:55 to 10:00—Time signals received from KDKA, Pittsburgh.

10:10—Quiet.

10:15 p. m.—WBF, shore station of the United Fruit Company, Boston, calling BUV, British steamship Toloa, on 600 meters. Tells him to answer on 700.

10:18—WBF calling BUV on 600. Tells him to answer on 700 meters.

10:20—Quiet.

10:30—Quiet.

10:40—Quiet.

10:45—Some Montreal station, on about 340 meters, signs off after broadcasting a public meeting about forestry protection. Comes in like a local station.

10:50—Quiet.

The Listener

WSAI, Cincinnati, has introduced a new feature in the shape of a review of news once a week. Current events are briefly summarized and extracts from editorial comment from the country at large quoted.

Announcers should never let more than a few seconds pass between the conclusion of a selection and the announcement of the station. Too often to be pleasant, we have had to wait for a minute or two before this announcement, and it is impossible to keep ones fingers off the dial during this period. Our own WNAC comes in with the announcement very well indeed. We also like the style they have adopted of giving the name of the previous selection.

Radio is fast becoming a means of bringing together persons separated by long periods of time. The other night at WCAP, Washington, the announcer told of a radio fan who made himself known to W. Spencer Tuppman, leader of the Myer Davis le Paradis Band, whom he had not seen since Tuppman was six years old. He had lost track of Tuppman, but found him through hearing his name announced as conductor of the orchestra, and went to Washington to look him up.

More and more "hams" are putting in phone transmitters. I sometimes bring my tuning down to the under 200-meter bands, and not infrequently I pick up one of these hams. Not very entertaining, to be sure, but good for a change.

Standing before the microphone has developed an entirely new kind of stage fright. Even those accustomed to public speaking, as well as stage stars, get a sort of indefinable nervousness as they face no human bein, but realize the thousands who may be listening. oMst of those performing for "Mike" take no chances, but have their material all written down in front of them.

RADIO QUERIES

By MINOT A. SIMMONS.

Radio Editor:—

What is the cause of oscillation in the Super?

K. L. HENDERSON.

Boston.

There are various causes, such as incorrect angle of the coils, high resistance contacts, poor wiring causing feedback, improper grid leak with the wrong adjustment on the radio-frequency and detector tubes, or incorrect wiring. Your trouble is probably poor contacts.

Radio Editor:—

How many ohms should a rheostat be to handle two UV201A's? Who is station WXAZ?

I. W. WESGATE

Middleton.

One 25-ohm rheostat will handle the job. There is no WXAZ. You probably heard WJAZ in Chicago.

Radio Editor:—

WNAC comes in on the first dial at ten and the second dial at ninety, and I get only local stations. What is the trouble?

P. H. BAKER.

Swampscott.

Evidently your coil is not correct. The value of inductance must be very small to give such a reading. You probably have most of the secondary coil shorted in some way, or else you have the two dials reversed, so that one reads right and the other reads left for the same value of capacity.

Radio Editor:

Whart are the best tubes to use and what batteries?

S. Boston. B. KASOKAITIS.

We consider the C301A for amplifiers and the C300 for detector. One six-volt storage battery and two forty-five volt blocks of B battery.

Radio Editor:

I have built an American Super, and while I get good results as far as distance and volume go, I get an occasional squeal on nearby stations. I have built it exactly according to your specifications and have checked over the wiring and the coils.

L. J. H

Providence.

A poor ground will frequently cause the set to oscillate on some wave-lengths. Improperly tipped coils or crowded wiring might also cause it.

Radio Editor:

What is the ratio of the coils of the Super set?

W. McCARTHY.

Lonsdale, R. I.

One to ten and one-tenth. Your other questions on your regenerative set would be hard to answer without seeing and testing out the set.

Radio Editor:—

Can a push-pull amplifier be added successfully to the American Super. What should I use to shield the panel?

W. A. T.

Dorchester.

Yes. The Super, when correctly built, does not need shielding.

RE-BROADCASTS EXECUTED ON SHORT WAVE

British Stations Perform Fea of Transforming American Messages

Experiments in short wave broadcasting by means of extremely high frequencies have reached a climax in the repeating of American broadcasts by British stations in the past week.

The feat whereby American broadcasts are repeated on these short waves and received and re-broadcasted by English stations, thus reaching the peoples of Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and the Scandinavian countries, is the outcome of two years experimenting and perfecting of high frequency apparatus by Frank Conrad, assistant chief engineer of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company.

INTERFERENCE PROBLEM.

The interference problem first brought into prominence about two years ago, when so many broadcasting stations had been started and were operating on frequencies very similar, first brought the idea to Conrad and his associates that extremely high frequencies held many possibilities for the perfecting of broadcasting. He started experimenting with his own station and from a short wave station installed on the roof where the transmitting apparatus of KDKA, the world's pioneer station, is located.

Last week the repeating took place with the British Broadcasting Company, which has a monopoly on broadcasting in Great Britain. Six or seven of this company's stations were tied together by means of telephone lines and the repeating of KDKA'S concerts was started.

The result of this was the people living in Great Britain and Eastern Europe heard American concerts as plainly and with the same receiving sets with which they could hear their own station. It was the greatest triumph that radio had made in the past year and has actually changed the whole future of broadcasting.

ON NINE-STORY BUILDING.

The high frequency transmitter which does the repeating is located on the top of a nine-story building in the Westinghouse plant at East Pittsburgh, Pa. Because of the fact that high frequency sets are critical and can be thrown off their wave easily, the whole set is mounted on springs to guard against jars.

To prevent the swinging of the antenna, it is drawn taut between its uprights, and the down leads consist of copper tubing. The various inductances on the set are wound on rigid forms with copper tubing forming all leads. The transmitting set consists of three panels, as follows: the rectifier panel, the modulator panel and the oscillator panel. All the equipment represents the last word in transmitting apparatus with water-cooled tubes and special condensers.

USES SMALL AERIAL.

The short wave transmitter is almost an exact duplicate of the big transmitting unit at KDKA with the changes necessary to efficiently work on high frequencies.

One of the most striking things about the short wave transmitting set is the extremely short antenna used. The antenna at KDKA for use with the short wave receiver is slightly in excess of 35 feet. When the size of the antenna is compared to the 200 feet lengths of the antenna used for regular broadcasts the result is striking. That this antenna will be sufficient to send broadcasts over the ocean is scarcely believed by many that see it.

In England the law prohibits large antenna with the result that most antenna are under 40 feet. The result of this is that radio frequency receivers are the common apparatus used, so that the reception of the short wave signals is ideal on the continent.

FOUR KILLED AT FIRES IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, Jan. 22.—Four persons died, several others were seriously burned, and damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars, was suffered in four fires at different points of the city early today.

Albert E. Donovan, fireman, died of heart disease while fighting a blaze at a dress factory in Queens. Physicians said exposure to the freezing temperature weakened him.

In a three-alarm fire at a Bronx warehouse, six firemen were injured by a back draught. The blast jarred wreckage on them as they fought their way up the stairs from the basement. A blaze at the Standard Oil Company plant in Long Island City was subdued after a two-hour struggle.

Rely on De Forest Condensers

WHEN you examine a laboratory tested product like this condenser you know why De Forest Radiophones give such sure satisfaction. A set is as good as its parts, and De Forest radio parts are as good as the De Forest name.

1 MILLION WOOL PLANT FOR WOONSOCKET

French Concern to Establish Factory Here and Compete With American Companies

Woonsocket, R. I., Jan. 22.—A million-dollar wool-combing factory will be erected just outside of Woonsocket by the Amadee Prouvost Company of Roubiax, France, which will produce in excess of 100,000 pounds of combed wool each week.

The Amedee Prouvost Company is the largest of its kind in France. It has an option which expires on March 31 next on a 100-acre tract of land at Branch Village, in the town of North Smithfield, two miles from the center of Woonsocket. It is planned to begin construction work in April.

The decision by the company to enter the American textile field is said to have been influenced by the present high tariff imposed on combed wool, and the success of American competitors in this field.

A Rhode Island corporation, to finance the undertaking, with a capitalization of $2,300,000, is being organized. American capital will be admitted.

COOLIDGE APPROVES U. S. LIVESTOCK LOANS

TRAVEL BRIEFS

NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

By BOBBIE SHAFTOE

WHEN YOU ARE HEADING SOUTH.

Winter vacationing where warm skies obviate the need of fur lined sleeping bags has come into its own this year and thousands of motorists are ordering a couple of spare tubes, greasing their wheel bearings, and armed with a copy of the Blue Book are heading for the open roads of the South and southwest.

A great variety of routes are available, not all of which are good—some that are not even fair. The best roads are to be found via the National Old Trail to Washington and south through Petersburg, Va., Clarksville, Oxford, Durham, Greensboro, Camden, Columbia, Macon, Tifon, Valdosta and Lake City.

This is the longest way down but offers the best roads. Many miles can be topped off to Jacksonville by making the Waycross cutoff, which is a fair dry weather route.

HERE ARE TWO GREAT PACIFIC MAGNETS:

The call of Southern California and of Honolulu, two sections of the United States most bountifully blessed by nature, is heeded each Winter by an increasingly large number of people.

Both are popularly regarded as Winter resorts, but because of their equable climate can truly be considered year round resorts par excellence.

Direct steamer service with fortnightly sailings between Los Angeles and Honolulu offers the visitor from the North or East every convenience to enjoy a few days or weeks in the Southland, and then embark on a week's voyage on one of the giant liners in the Los Angeles-Honolulu service to the "Magic Isles" of Hawaii.

With a variation of less than ten degrees in the temperature of the water between Christmas Day and July Fourth, bathing at Waikiki and other island beaches is a year round enjoyment.

Hawaii offers the sportsman the finest of game fishing, (sword fish, tuna and albacore), hunting in great variety, golf, tennis, mountain climbing and motoring, in addition to its famous canoeing, surf board riding and moonlight bathing.

BERMUDA ATTRACTS MANY TOURISTS.

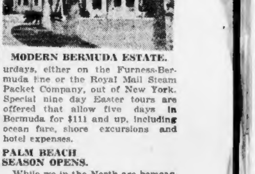
In spite of the mild weather, there has been no appreciable decline in travel to Bermuda this season, and the main street of Hamilton often resembles a section of Broadway.

A novel feature at some of the concerts and dances at the hotels this season is dancing to radio music broadcasted from New York, Pittsburg, and other distant points.

Never before have so many people of prominence wintered in Bermuda—recent arrivals include Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt of New York; Mrs. Montgomery Sears, Boston; Mrs. Anna Phillips of Beverly, the Countess d'Ivry, Baroness de Stuoner and Mrs. Ledyard Blair.

Few winter resorts have a finer climate than Bermuda. From the beginning of January until the end of April the temperature averages 70 in the shade. Rain is infrequent and visitors can usually count on a succession of bright sunny days that rival the finest Summer weather. And only forty-eight hours from New York!

Sailings on Wednesdays and Saturdays, either on the Furness-Bermuda line or the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, out of New York. Special nine day Easter tours are offered that allow five days in Bermuda for $111 and up, including ocean fare, shore excursions and hotel expenses.



MODERN BERMUDA ESTATE.

PALM BEACH SEASON OPENS.

While we in the North are bemoaning the cost of coal, the bang-bang of the radiator, its excessive heat, doctor's bills and the price of galoshes, Palm Beachers go their sunny way in blissful ignorance of all this turmoil and worry. There is no monotony in this winter playground—and whether your taste is for golf or bathing, motorboating or sailing, game fishing or hunting, aero-planing or sea-planing, Palm Beach offers abundant opportunities under ideal conditions.

With the opening of the country club and the Royal Ponciania this week, and the initial dinner dance at the Everglades Club, the season formally opened, and every day swells the quota of winter visitors.

Among the notables who have already joined the winter colony are Mr. Charles M. Amory of Boston and New York, Maxwell Norman of Newport, Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard Jr., of Providence, Harold Vanderbilt of New York, Mrs. Charles F. Choate Jr. of Boston, the George A. Bobynes and Dr. and Mrs. Hobart Warren of Beverly, and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harper of Boston.

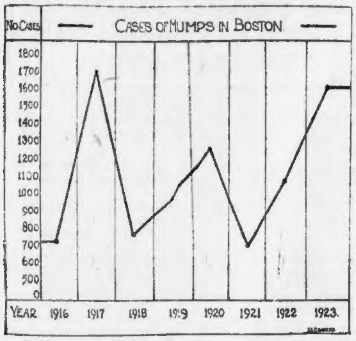
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Mahoney



By DR. F. X. MAHONEY.
Boston Health Commissioner.

"I HOPE they get all these children's diseases now while they're young."

If you are the mother of children, did you ever say that?

Dr. Mahoney.

Perhaps you didn't know what you were saying. You didn't mean it, of course, but what you really said was that you hoped your kiddies would get mumps and measles and scarlet fever and whooping cough and diphtheria and the whole range of so-called "children's diseases" that wreck little bodies and leave a menacing trail of strained hearts, weakened eyes, running ears and kidney infections.

Of course you didn't really wish these things for your children, but they have a good chance of getting them if they are needlessly exposed to these childhood scourges.

Science, with the careful following up of adult mortality figures, is leading the disgraceful trail of premature adult deaths to the weakened hearts and kidneys that were given your children by these diseases that you wish them to "get while they're young."

Avoid a childhood disease for your child as you would any other disaster that threatened them. First of all, they're serious and may take their innings now. And if your child has a predisposition to any ill, a siege of some childhood disease will put tremendous strain upon a weakened organ.

HOW MUMPS BEGINS

Mumps is one of these childhood diseases. It begins with pain below the ear, usually on one side. Later, however, and some times from the beginning both sides are affected. fected.

A swelling soon appears at the seat of the pain and within 48 hours there is an enlargement of the side of the neck below and in front of the ear, extending sooner or later to the cheek just in front of the ear. If in the beginning, only one side has been affected, usually within a day or two, the other side undergoes the same process. Sometimes the tissues just beneath and inside of the lower edge of the lower jaw swell, and the entire neck may become swollen.

The patient finds it difficult to open the mouth and eating and talking are painful. The fever and usual symptoms accompanying mumps are usually not severe. Complications may arise, however, in other parts of the body, and in that case serious consequences may ensue.

Usually mumps is easily recognized and many times treated without the aid of a physician. If there is the slightest doubt, however, as to the nature of the disease, call a physician.

From ten to fifteen days is the ordinary course of the disease. If the disease attacks the patient more generally, the illness may be serious and prolonged. It is regarded as dangerous to other persons for at least twenty-one days after the beginning of the attack.

Keep the patient in bed on a light diet until the fever has subsided, and for the first week anyway. No medicine, internal or external, will cure the disease or shorten its course. And look out for complications.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Dear Doctor:

Why is so much written about colds when every one gets one, and it seems to do no harm?

J. A. C.

Cambridge.

ANSWER—It is known that more time and money are lost through the ordinary cold than any other cause. Not only hygienically, but economically and industrially it is an important factor. Then there are the possible complications and results of the common cold such as rheumatic fever, pneumonia, nephritis, and the lowering of the vitality which allows other infections to get a grip on the body. Colds are communicable.

Dear Doctor:

At what season of the year are eggs poorest?

J. J. S.

Bangor, Me.

ANSWER—The July and August egg are the poorest, and contain more bacteria than eggs laid in the Spring, Fall or Winter. Winter and Spring eggs keep better, also, than do the Summer eggs.

Dear Doctor:

Are preserved foods as nutritious as unpreserved foods?

A. A. B.

Brighton.

ANSWER—No. But on account of the large population preserved foods are necessary. In the large cities it would be impossible to secure a daily supply of fresh foodstuffs. Of course, salt meat is not as good as fresh meat, dried fruits are less to be desired than fresh fruits, and the many kinds of prepared meats are not as palatable and nutritious as a piece of fresh beef. In the preserving of foodstuffs we must be careful to have them lose as little as possible of their nutritive value, and so handle them that they will not acquire injurious properties.

Amalgamating Cities

Editor Boston American:

A great deal is being said these days about the consolidation of Medford and Somerville, a proposition advanced by the mayor of Somerville in the enthusiasm of an inaugural address.

Some of Somerville's prominent men evidently have taken the suggestion with some seriousness, for I understand a well-known business organization of that city has gone so far as to suggest that a committee of one hundred responsible citizens of each city get together to draw up some scheme for amalgamation.

It seems to me that the Mayor of Somerville has been very modest in his suggestion. Why limit amalgamation to merely Medford and Somerville? Why not combine all the cities in the metropolitan district north and east of the Charles River? This would include Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Malden, Melrose, Everett, Revere, Chelsea and some smaller towns. In addition to these I would suggest that Mayor Curley be asked to use his influence to have East Boston and Charlestown set aside from Boston and allow them to come into the combination.

All having united, and Medford, being the centre geographically, let us call the amalgamated city Medford. I am sure the citizens of such a city would have no objection to having Eddie Quinn as its first mayor, and the Hon. John Webster as president of its first board of aldermen.

I offer this merely as a suggestion. If any combination is to be made, let us do a good job and go the whole distance.

JAMES G. HARRIS.

Fare Advance

Editor Boston American:

The manner in which the Utilities Commission rushed through the advance in commuters' railroad fares is a most defiant and outrageous demonstration. Will you please give us the names and history of this commission? Tell who is responsible for their appointment and to whom they are answerable for their acts?

Can't anything be done to nullify their act, at least until such time as we are convinced that same is justified?

THOMAS O'CONNOR.

Not a Flaw

Editor Boston American:

I would like to know why so many people find fault with the only live paper in the U. S. A.

Believe me, I for one can't find one flaw in the paper. What doesn't interest me I don't read.

The day isn't complete without my American. But of course some people must find fault. For heaven's sake, don't change the paper any more. Even my baby, who is only three likes the funnies.

Many thanks indeed. The fifteen dollars has been added to the Fund, and will go a long way toward relieving distress.

Depths of Despair

Editor Helping Hand:

Two months ago, my husband chronically ill, my year-old baby in need of special care, and I expecting my little girl with neither clothes or crib for her, I measured for once the depths of despair. To you and the generous people who came to my assistance I am forever grateful. I am working again and making twelve dollars a week, out of which I pay for rent, fuel, milk, gas and provisions, for all of us. Most of the time I have to draw half my pay in advance. My little son is just beginning to walk, and I am denied the joys of motherhood, as I cannot see him walk, and he does not recognize me, but his grandmother sends a snapshot of him now and then, and this helps me on when I am discouraged. I want to provide a happy home for all of us, where we will not be separated. I have applied for part time work in most of the hotels, tea-rooms and agencies with no results. Perhaps someone could give me work from five to twelve in Boston or nearby. I have some nursing experience and can offer good references.

MRS. W. C.

One Mother—

And Some Other Things

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

A national outrage was perpetrated at Ellis Island last week. Mrs. Dantes, mother of five small children, was deported because she was born in Holland, whose quota is exhausted, but her children were admitted, because they were born in Germany. They are with their father, who has been here two years. The mother fainted when her baby was taken from her and she was sent away. A decent man would not so treat a dog.

Nothing more cruel has been charged against Soviet Russia by its worst enemy, and the irony of it is that if Mrs. Dantes had been a tight rope walker instead of a mother she would have been admitted without question, inasmuch as quota restrictions do not apply to "artists."

Last year our rivers yielded $15,000,000 worth of pearls, some of them being worth $25,000 apiece, and now we are going to increase the industry by taking care of the spawn of the mussel that makes the pearl.

This spawn dies unless it can attach itself to, and feed off of, the gills or fins of certain fish, and the Fish Bureau will bring the two together, either by putting fish in spawn-filled water or by pouring such water directly over the fish. After two or three weeks the spawn leaves the fish, drops to the river bed and in two or three years becomes a maker of pearls.

The president of the American Bar Association is afraid that America may be destroyed by "the mob." It will be recalled that in making arrangements to go to England next Summer, the American Bar Association refused to ride on an American ship, but engaged passage on an English ship.

The New Round Table

It Would Make Merlin Laugh

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Some gentlemen with much earnestness, but no sense of humor, have formed a "Round Table Club" and they have elected Secretary Hughes a member.

In all the wide world there can only be 128 members of that club, because, you see, King Arthur had only 128 bold knights at his round table.

King Arthur, Launcelot and the others, would, in our modern language, "get a kick out of that"—a round table made up of mild business gentlemen, and very mild "statesmen."

"When Arthur first in court began, and was approved king," he and his friends little dreamed of the imitation now invented. Mr. Hughes would make a good Sir Galahad for that table. He's innocent. Actually thinks Bolshevism may rule us here.

Has a World of Courage

President Butterfield of the Massachusetts Agricultural College has a very sound objection to the economies of our good friend and commissioner, Homer B. Loring. There must always exist a fundamental distinction between the power of the man who is clothed with the duty of achieving economy and the power of the man who is clothed with the duty of determining policy. Power to compel economy should never be allowed to control policy by exercising the veto power in the name of economy.

President Butterfield complains that Mr. Loring vetoed the issue of a publication deemed to be important in the development of the service which the Agricultural College was established to render. The propriety of this publication, therefore, was a question of policy which lay between the college and Legislature. It is a question concerning which Mr. Loring, our chief economical expert, had nothing whatever to do with. If the pamphlet was printed on paper which was expensive, if the contract for the printing was too high, or if there were any other items of expense too great in the mechanical publication or distribution of the pamphlet, then it would very properly fall under the evil eye of Mr. Loring and probably be treated by his well-known methods. But he should stop when his action would result in controlling policy. We do not suppose that Brother Loring knows any more about that pamphlet which has roused the ire of President Butterfield than a hog knows about gunpowder.

However, the economical Mr. Loring is having the time of his life. In many ways he reminds us of ex-Governor Foss. He is getting a lot of fun out of his office. He has a world of courage and an almost equal amount of public spirit. He is doing his duty as he sees it and with chivralic indomitability of a Cyrano de Bergerac.

A Reckless Statement

A gentleman representing one of our bar associations appeared before the members of the Massachusetts Legislature to support the Supreme Court in its opposition to the recommendations of our great economist, Loring, concerning the housing of the Supreme Court. This gentleman, true to form, told the members of the Legislature that the courts were the chief branch of the government.

Imagine some lick-spittle lawyer telling the Athenian Assembly two thousand years ago that their Archons were the chief part of the great Athenian democracy. Imagine some Roman lawyer—we cannot imagine Cicero—like Hortensius telling the Roman Senate, or some other practitioner in the Roman courts telling the citizens in the Forum, that the judges were the most important part of the State. Imagine a sycophantic lawyer in England telling a committee of the House of Commons, or in France a committee of the Chamber of Deputies, or in Germany a committee of the Reichstag, or in Russia the Central Council, or in Italy Mr. Dictator Mussolini—or before Mussolini, a committee of the Italian Parliament, that the most important public body in the State was the judges.

There have been a great many asinine gentlemen practicing law in these different ages and countries. But it would take a mighty stretch of the imagination to picture any quite so reckless as to tell the law-making body that it was inferior to the judges.

It is a poor compliment to any man to flatter him, but "crooking the pregnant hinges of the knee where thrift may follow fawning" has become a fine art with some members of our bar association.

THE PRACTICE BABY.

"I NEVER heard of such nonsense!" snorts old Mrs. Bopp. "Baby courses in school! Tommyrot! Borrowing young brats so a parcel of girls can waste their time playing with them. A fine use to make of the taxpayer's money! When I went to school we took sensible studies, things appropriate for schools—reading, grammar, arithmetic, geography. We didn't have any old maid giving us lectures on modified milk solutions. Time enough to learn about nursing bottles when the baby came along. Schools were schools—they weren't nurseries!"

And that's what old Mrs. Bopp thinks of the innovation in the Home Economics Department in Cornell University. The girl students in this department are learning not only the theory of baby tending but its actual application. They've "borrowed" Edna May Domecon, aged five months, for use as a "practice baby." Never was an infant given more careful scientific attention than young Edna. From the filling of her little fat tummy to the blowing of her small pink nose she is standardized and regulated and lectured over. Every detail of child care will be familiar to her foster mothers before they pass from practice babies to babies of their own.

Mrs. Bopp thinks this is all very silly. But is it? Was our grandmothers' regime Perfection Plus as regards the care of babies? The infant mortality statistics say it wasn't. They waited to learn milk formulas and colic treatments until the regular babies came along. Which was often too late for the baby. They learned how to take care of babies, but their diplomas frequently took the form of baby tombstones.

As a matter of fact, you might as well expect a boy to pick up a knowledge of electrical engineering by playing around dynamos as expect a young woman to learn how to take care of children by practicing on her own baby without any technical instruction. The human body is the most complicated machine on earth and the most valuable. We have spent countless generations in trying to study it and we are only beginning to probe its mysteries.

Just as the science of electrical engineering was a closed book to grandpa, so was the science of bodily engineering a closed book to grandma. She knew nothing of that vitally important subject, the operation of the glands. She was equally ignorant concerning food values. Appendicitis was called "inflammation of the bowels" and claimed its scores of victims through the wrong treatment. And consider the horrors of the diphtheria epidemics. The sturdy members of the race survived; but oh, what flocks of baby ghosts were wafted on their way!

Babies will still succumb to accident and disease. But if the Cornell idea spreads, not so many will succumb to carelessness and ignorance. We are beginning to realize that it is as absurd to trust to "mother instinct" in caring for children, as it would be to trust to aviator instinct in flying a powerful plane. If geography and grammar are worth studying, how much more worth while is the study of [illegible]eless human life?

DR. FRANK CRANE ON FROM INTELLIGENCE TO EDUCATION

By Dr. Frank Crane

SOMEBODY smartly said that intelligence enables us to get along without education, and education enables us to get along without intelligence.

The real meaning in this saying is that ideas, vision and convictions are born in intelligence and are taken up and spread by education.

Dr. Butler, president of Columbia University, made a statement the other day that is significant. He said:

"The world is in the grip of this ultra-nationalistic theory. It has got a hold on mankind. We have won the war on the field of battle. Do we propose to lose the war on the field of ideals and send millions of persons to starvation, civilization to destruction and what is left of us to another series of wars until the dwindling race disappears from the pages of history?"

The advanced thinkers who perforce are irresponsible have been pounding away for some time at the nation myth. They have been insisting that if the world is to go with the nation, instead of humanity, as supreme then the world is to go on under the old system and wars are to be expected at regular intervals.

As mankind increases in efficiency in construction, so it increases in efficiency in destruction. Hence, these wars will be worse and worse and the logical end will be the extinction of civilized man.

While the sharpshooting thinkers, away ahead of the army, were saying these things, the preachers, priests, college professors and newspaper editorial writers had still got no further than patriotism.

The significance of the college president's utterance is that it is a hint that at last the regular and established group of opinion makers has got hold of the one idea that can save the human race.

That idea is the supremacy of humanity. It does not at all imply the abolition of the nation, nor any decrease in patriotism; it simply implies that the nation as an institution and patriotism as an emotion belong in the second place and not in the first.

The supreme organization, the one that needs to be formed above all others is an organization of the whole world, to which each nation should be subservient. Likewise the supreme passion is the passion for humanity, and no patriotism is decent that is not subservient to that.

Whether we shall have a League of Nations or not is a matter for the politicians who are struggling in the mud of practical affairs to determine. Perhaps the present effort to organize the world under the League is not workable. That is a question to be determined by time and experiment.

But it is certain if we do not have such an organization we must have another and a better one developed from the same impulse.

That is the next step in evolution, and evolution is not always nice. Sometimes it is bloody and terrible. If the nations of the world cannot get together by using their intelligence they will be forced to get together by the imminence of chaos.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON 'RESEARCH' WORK

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

WHEN we cease to be "faddists" we may become intellectually civilized. The other night, at a banquet of the sons of a certain university, I listened to a stridulous speech by a "doctor of philosophy." (Ph. D), whose highest keyed note screeched the psalm of praise to the newest fad-god "Research."

The worship of this god, which is being thrust more and more upon public attention, begins to grow a little irksome for those who are not in the ring of worshippers. The name itself has a phonic quality which stirs up mental nausea when it is too often heard, and this disagreeable effect is greatly heightened by pedantic assertions of the all-importance of what is called "research work," as if the nature and value of work were somehow exalted when decorated with a shibboleth.

Human Culture

At the recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which is one of the world's greatest agents for the interchange and dissemination of knowledge, the president of one of the sections devoted his address to praise of a certain college, which, he said, "gives each of its teachers half or more of his time and energy free from teaching and for use in research."

Well, perhaps I am old-fashioned and "reactionary," but I would not send a boy of mine to a college run on such principles. I would try to find a college where he could lay the foundations of a broad human culture.

The narrow, technical character of the "research" point of view is indicated by another passage in this same address, where it is said that "Phi Beta Kappa has not been admitted because of the fear that it may help emphasize false standards of honor in place of work for the interest of the work itself. Sigma Xi, on the other hand, being devoted to the active promotion of research, has a very strong chapter" (in the college).

Now, these two celebrated college societies are equally admirable in their aims. The character of Sigma Xi is sufficiently indicated in the quotation above; that of the far older Phi Beta Kappa is indicated by its motto: "Philosophy the Guide of Life," and by its rule of membership, which is bestowed as an honorable recognition of high standing in the upper classes—not the "upper classes" of society, of course, but the later classes in the college course.

To shut out any respectable association whose aim is to honor learning and culture, is simply to manifest a spirit of restricted exclusiveness, such as shows itself in a third passage of the same address that I am quoting from, where it is said, in speaking of the effect of the policy described, that: "The students have been carefully selected for admission, only those being taken who seem, on the recommendation of their preparatory course instructors, to be likely to respond worthily to the special opportunities the college offers."

Now that word, as I said before, has become a shibboleth, and it imposes upon people who only judge it from the respect shown to it by worshippers. But, listen to what a speaker, a true scientist, said about it at the meeting of the same association in Baltimore, in 1918.

Cook the Hog

After a highly amusing account of an imaginary "research" into the problem of how many sandwiches may be obtained from a hog (a research during which the candidate for the Ph. D. degree ignored the vulgar fact that "the easiest way would be to kill the hog and cook him"), the speaker continued:

"Absurd as the foregoing may seem, you all know that actual work might be cited which would be not a whit more sensible. A serious examination of the countless papers published in any one of the sciences will reveal an appalling number of trivial, inconclusive unscientific effusions which are but a means of disclosing the ignorance of their authors of the first principles of science."

The speaker on that occasion was not attacking genuine scientific investigation, but the affectation and pretence of it, when the object is not the advancement of knowledge but the getting of a "doctor's degree," or sometimes, escape from less amusing labor.
